The Amity Foundation, an independent Chinese voluntary organization, was created in 1985 on the initiative of Chinese Christians to promote education, social services, health, and rural development from China's coastal provinces in the east to the minority areas of the west.

Abiding by the principle of mutual respect in faith, Amity builds friendship with people at home and abroad. Through the promotion of holistic development and public welfare, Amity serves society, benefits the people and strives to promote world peace. In this way, Amity:

- Contributes to China's social development and openness to the outside world;
- Makes Christian involvement and participation in meeting the needs of society more widely known to the Chinese people;
- Serves as a channel for people-to-people contact and the ecumenical sharing of resources.

ON THE COVER: The two deaf students from Guiding Special Education School, Guizhou Province, are communicating with each other through Chinese Sign Language. The SigAm Bilingual Deaf Education Projects in China have been promoting the rights of deaf children to receive quality education.

The Year 2010 was exceptional. The concurrence of global climate change, environmental degradation and inappropriate human activities contributed to a steep rise in the number of disasters. We witnessed the consecutive occurrence of severe droughts in south-west China, the devastating earthquake in Yushu, floods in south China, and a massive landslide in Zhouqu. Despite its more than 20 years’ experience in disaster relief, Amity set quite a few historical records in 2010. Launching three emergency disaster relief initiatives in the same year was unprecedented. In Yushu’s earthquake-stricken areas, we encountered the toughest natural conditions and exceptionally high altitudes that made relief work difficult. This did not deter courageous Amity staff and volunteers from serving at the frontlines and their numbers topped previous ones. However, Amity also had to confront the tightest restrictions on NGO relief work. Relief funds donated by the public were kept under government control and NGO relief efforts for the victims were strictly monitored. Rather than giving up under such adverse conditions, we opted for persistence and resolution. We pride ourselves in having an unflinching team that has since received positive responses and support from the public and the government.

2010 was also a year of expansion. Amity’s social development and social service projects continued to expand. We saw further improvement at the project management level, and enhanced participation of local beneficiaries in the whole project process. The scope of target groups has widened. Amity’s first community-based home for the elderly began its operations. It is worth a mention that Amity’s NGO nurturing work has made much headway. The Amity NGO Development Center, China’s first professional NGO-incubating organization initiated by a public fund-raising foundation, was honored with the first China Social Innovation Award.

2010 was a year of milestones. A quarter of a century old, Amity is no longer a toddler. We celebrated Amity’s 25th anniversary with a wealth of friends from all over the world, partner organizations, beneficiaries, ambassadors to China, and government officials. Recapturing the beginnings of our organization and the hardships Amity’s founders faced further strengthened our sense of mission and responsibility.
I owe special thanks to our partners and donors in China and overseas who have made it possible for us to fulfill our mission. Your support signifies a deep bond of trust. It is our mission as well as responsibility to ensure that your donations and support are truly used to make a positive difference to the lives of people in greatest need.

Auditors’ Report

The Board of Directors of the Amity Foundation,

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of the Amity Foundation, which comprise the statement of assets and liabilities of the Amity Foundation as of 31 December 2010, and the operating activities statements for the year then ended.

1. Management’s responsibility for the financial statements

The Amity Foundation management is responsible for the preparation of these financial statements in accordance with Accounting Systems for Not-for-profit Organization. This responsibility includes: (1) designing, implementing and maintaining internal control relevant to the preparation of the financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error; (2) selecting and applying appropriate accounting policies; and (3) making accounting estimates that are reasonable in the circumstances.

2. Auditor’s responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with Chinese Certified Public Accountants Auditing Standards. Those standards require that we comply with ethical requirements and plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor’s judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, we consider the internal control relevant to the preparation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the internal control. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.
3. Opinion

In our opinion, the financial statements of the Amity Foundation have been prepared in accordance with Accounting Systems for Not-for-profit Organization, and present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Amity Foundation as of 31 December 2010, and the receipts and payments for the year then ended.

Church & Social Service

The year of 2010 brought lots of opportunities and challenges to Amity’s Church and Social Service Program. The existing church-run projects financially supported by Jiangsu Christian Fund of Social Service took on a new look. Meanwhile, great effort was put into the attempt to expand the scope of social service.

In 2010, ten types of projects were carried out, including HIV/AIDS Prevention Publicity projects, Capacity Building Training projects, Church-run Voluntary Medical Services projects, Environmental Protection projects, Nursing Home Support projects, Drinking Water System projects, Disaster Relief projects, projects of Supporting Chinese Seminaries, Designated Assistance projects and Inter-Church Exchange programs. These projects covered more than 40 counties and cities in 8 provinces, which benefited over 30,000 people.

Jiangsu Christian Fund for Social Service

Ever since its establishment in April 2009, Jiangsu Christian Fund of Social Service received continuous support from churches in Jiangsu. Based on the strategy of “one body and two wings”, the Fund aimed to participate in and make contributions to social service with its own characteristics. The projects, focusing on diaconal ministry, were done in spirits of “promotion, advocacy, capacity” and “dedication, service, brand building”.

1. Building Volunteer Team

How to encourage more and more Christians to get involved in social service remained top on the agenda. A volunteer team consisting of more than 40 members was assembled to help with regular project activities. These Christian volunteers from 11 different places in Jiangsu Province, were highly recommended by local churches. Through capacity building and active participation in projects, these volunteers gained deeper understanding of the Fund and strengthened their commitment to social service. In due time, they would become the backbone of volunteerism to promote social service among churches in Jiangsu.

2. Enhancing the Churches’ Capacity of Social Service

In order to serve the people more actively and efficiently, the Christian fund of social service in 2010 sponsored and organized three training programs for church, two nursing skills training courses and one peace skills course. Thus, they are better equipped with theoretical and practical skills for diaconal ministry.

3. Promoting Inter-Church Communication and Cooperation

Based on the Jiangsu Christian Fund of Social Service, Amity has been promoting inter-church communication and cooperation in social service. By means of team building, group activities, training, sharing and regular church performances, a bridge to effective communication and cooperation among churches in Jiangsu and beyond has been built so that all could contribute to the well-being of the society.

4. Carrying out Characteristic Social Service Projects

To promote social services by making full use of the church network was one great advantage of the Fund. After the 2010 Yushu Earthquake, the Fund managed to raise over one million Chinese yuan for the quake-stricken area. Besides, the 2010 Church Joint Action on Environmental Protection was also initiated. Flea markets were well organized by churches in Suzhou, Wuxi, Nanjing and Changzhou to advocate a low-carbon lifestyle. Charity sales brought together Christians from different churches to recycle second-hand stuff and lectures on eco-friendly life were given to all the participants. Such projects on social services were very popular among Christians, and hence gained lots of support from them.

Church-Run HIV/AIDS Prevention Projects

Another important focus of the Fund was on the HIV/AIDS prevention projects. Basic knowledge on HIV/AIDS was given through the services to raise public awareness on this issue as well as to eliminate their discrimination against people with HIV/AIDS. In 2010, the two-year project of HIV/AIDS Care and Prevention in Zhoukou City, Henan Province completed successfully. From 2008 to 2010, 48 training courses had been held in 40 villages of 6 counties. 17 teams have been organized for mutual support. More than 3800 people benefited from this project.

Furthermore, with the advocacy and encouragement of Zhoukou Protestant churches, the four other major religious groups, namely, Buddhists, Taoists, Catholic Christians and Muslims in local areas made their own contribution to the project. In addition, this also promoted inter-faith cooperation in social services. Up to the year of 2010, over 4200 people in 40 religious sites within four countries had directly benefited from this three-year project.

Capacity-Building Projects

Capacity building projects is one of the most effective ways to promote church involvement in social service and to improve the quality of their work. During 2010, some key projects had been conducted in the project areas, especially in the southwest where minority groups live, such as Guizhou and Chongqing, training courses for church leaders were sponsored to improve their capacity for social service. After training they could better grasp the basic methods and principles to do social service, and thus better prepare themselves to further develop the social services in their communities. Over 200 church leaders benefited from such trainings.

Church-run Voluntary Medical Services

In 2010, church-run medical service projects were continued in Jiangsu, Shaanxi and Guizhou provinces. Lectures on physical health, free health check-ups and treatments were offered to local residents. Altogether, 9,104 people in the mountainous areas or ethnic minority communities benefited from these medical services. The projects not only provided voluntary medical services to the public, but also helped to raise public awareness on health issues in the less-developed regions.
"Low-carbon Green Carnival" of Jiangsu Church

"The heavens declare the glory of God; the skies proclaim the work of his hands. Day after day they pour forth speech; night after night they display knowledge."

Advocating the concept of environmental protection and promoting low-carbon lifestyle are the important ways to protect the environment. Each Christian has the responsibility to protect the earth, to love all the creation. In this way we are God’s coworkers.

In 2010, the Jiangsu Christian Fund of Social Service started the joint action of environmental protection among churches in Jiangsu. This church-based project aimed at promoting church involvement in environmental protection, promoting the concept of environmental protection and advocating low-carbon lifestyle. From October to December of 2010, several flea markets were held in Suzhou, Wuxi, Nanjing and Changzhou with the joint effort of different churches.
Community Development & Environmental Protection

Community Development & Environment Protection projects promote the idea of participatory community development, satisfy the basic needs of disadvantaged groups in both urban and rural areas, improve the capacity of community resource management and community development, encourage the disadvantaged population to take active roles in the decision-making, administration and development of the community, and eventually establish a mutual positive effect between community development and environment protection.

The team of community development and environment protection has planned, monitored, and evaluated the implementation of 29 projects in 40 counties, which are distributed in 11 provinces and ethnic autonomous regions. Altogether 446,708 people benefited from Amity’s projects and 69% of this population is from ethinical groups.

Young People in Guanghe: a path to fortune encouraged by noodle stretching Lamian, the stretched noodle originated in Gansu Province, is one of the most popular Chinese style fast food in this country. Many of the noodle stretchers in Lamian restaurants are from Ningxia Hui Ethnic Autonomous Prefecture. Among them, a large number are from Guanghe County. The average monthly income of a noodle stretcher is between 1,200 and 2,000 Yuan. Some of the noodle stretchers even started their own Lamian restaurants after they have accumulated some experience.

As Lamian restaurants expand all over China in recent years, the need for noodle stretchers becomes greater. Supported by Amity’s Project, Zhuangheji Township of Guanghe County organized a few training sessions on noodle stretching, which were well received by local young villagers. Surprisingly, many young girls also took part in these training. During the training, trainers taught skills and know-how hand by hand. Then the trainer tested the participants and held a competition for them at the end of the session. The whole process is full of fun as well as professionalism. Each session usually lasts for six weeks.

The First 10,000 Yuan Earned from Vegetable Farming

Zhang Xiuqing, a villager from Sanyuan Village of Minhe County in Qinghai Province, made more than 10,000 yuan by vegetable farming per year. She used to make a lot less when she only knew wheat farming. Now she is already a master of vegetable farming in her village.

Zhang Xiuqing first heard of Amity Project in 2008. However, since she was not sure of the benefit of vegetable farming, she didn’t dare to put up a plastic shed as others did, no matter how hard the staff of local Amity Project Office tried. As time passed and those who joined the project started to profit, she couldn’t help visiting the project office and applying for putting up a plastic shed for vegetables.

Though not well educated, Zhang Xiuqing worked very hard to master the necessary skills of vegetable farming. She attended every training session organized by the project office and carefully practiced what she acquired in class (e.g., manuring, watering, etc.) in the shed. With the help of technicians, she finally harvested piles of fresh vegetables such as summer squash and chili, which sold well in market. With an annual income exceeding 10,000 yuan, Zhang Xiuqing felt satisfied and now she is putting up a new plan with bigger ambition.

“I will no longer have to do wood chopping next year.”

76-year-old Ren Shiqi lives in Hongxing Village, Yongshun County of western Hunan Province. In early September of 2010, the biogas pool construction in his house was in its second phase—waiting for the solidification of the water pressure chamber.

Known as a capable laborer in the neighborhood, Ren Shiqi was able to chop more than one hundred kilos of wood in the mountains for kitchen fuel a day. He recalled he was not motivated at all when Amity’s Biogas Project started in his village. However, he admitted his legs were not as nimble as before as he aged. Though the wood he chopped a day could still meet the cooking need of his family, he was beginning to feel weary after the labor. Meanwhile, he also witnessed the biogas tanks and functioning in other families of his village. He realized this new energy was clean and convenient as well as labor saving. “With the biogas pool, I will no longer have to do wood chopping next year. Besides, I am getting too old for that exercise.” The senior farmer made the point.

“We need this kind of training.”

Through various means such as intensive training, field trips, on-the-spot study, experts’ follow-up guidance, and forums of poverty alleviation, Ziyang City of Sichuan Province organized leaders from 97 poverty stricken villages to share the latest rural policies and agricultural information. The training refreshed their minds, broadened their horizons, strengthened their capacity and confidence, and help them realize their disadvantages. In all, the training laid a solid foundation for the comprehensive development of their villages. Amity Projects not only provided a platform for leaders of poverty-stricken villages to exchange ideas and learn from each other, but offered opportunities to practice project implementation as well. After the training, these participants went back and investigated the potential needs of their villages, and then submitted their project proposals to Amity. Amity reviewed these proposals and offered partially financial aid to five of them. The implementation of these selected projects further trained and improved various capacities of these village-level leaders.

"In the trainings and field trips these days, I felt very excited when I saw other's achievements and how well they developed. I must take the advanced ideas and methods back and organize a thorough discussion among leaders, backbones, the representatives of villagers. We must make a good plan according to our situation. We will expand the forestry cooperative which was founded already and encourage more villagers to join in. Then, when the forestry runs well, we will start processing industry to improve villagers' income."

—Head of Nongtian Village, Xiaoqian Township, Yanjiang District

"In the intensive training that lasted a week, we enthusiastically listened to the reports and sharing of the leaders, experts, and farmer's representatives. I was deeply moved and enlightened. I feel my responsibility is big and that gives me some pressure. Communication with other participants also helped me changed ideas and learned more. When I am back, I will utilize what I learned and the information, policies, ideas, methodologies etc. this training taught me to lead the villagers to development."

—Head of Xiaohe Village, Gaosi Township, Lezhi County

Reflections from the project team

We must base our work on the needs of local community and put participatory ideas and principles throughout the whole process of the project's implementation. On one hand, we should ensure the participation of villagers in activity planning, institution building, and project curriculum designing; on the other hand, we should reinforce the capacity of project staff and enable them to raise the awareness of participation of the villagers, so that everyone's enthusiasm and creativity can be stimulated and the community can be better served.

We must base our work on local context and carefully analyze it to optimize resources to push the project forward. The smooth implementation of the project depends on the situation of target area, which requires us to carefully analyze the environment, effectively communicate with local partners, investigate the details of the resources local villagers can access, and think of every step of the project before it is carried out. We need to be able to view the project in both macro and micro scale. We not only need to know the needs of the people, but need to learn the government's policy and the characteristics of local context. Only in this way can we take advantage of our strengths and create a good atmosphere of project implementation.

We must further regulate and standardize the financial management of the project. In the process of project management, we should always pay attention to the financial management, which includes a good control of fund raising and allocating as well as monitoring. Sometimes we have to interfere with the project management of our local partners when necessary, in order to secure the fund to be used efficiently.

We must strengthen the monitoring of the projects and establish a system of indicators for it. Based on the goals of the projects, a system of indicators should be established according to the real situation. The indicators should be concrete, measurable, feasible, and up-to-date. We should help the local partners to make monthly plan and monitor their implementation on the basis of the project's requirement of time management, so that we can discover the problems occurred during the implementation in the first place and organize to tackle them in time.
Disaster Management

Experience gathered from Wenchuan Earthquake Relief Program was widely practiced in 2010. To quickly and effectively respond to disasters, Amity has formed Emergency Response Team. The team includes three groups. Once a disaster takes place, one group stays in the affected area for needs assessment and project implementation, while the second moves in big cities nearby the affected area for supply purchasing and transportation, and the third works in Amity Nanjing headquarter for liaison. Based on the emergency response system, Amity engaged in the relief projects for four disasters, including Drought in Southwest China, Earthquake in Yushu, Flood in Southern China, and Landslide in Zhouqu.

Wenchuan Earthquake 2008

In 2010, reconstruction work was implemented in Sichuan and Shaanxi. Besides the programs launched in 2009, many new activities were conducted as follows:

Flood 2009

Reconstruction work under this project was conducted separately in Cengong County, Guizhou Province and Lingyun County, Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region. A total of 68 households, three drinking water systems, three irrigation systems were repaired or reconstructed, and 200 people received trainings on agricultural technology and community development. All activities were completed before August 2010.

Drought in Southwest China 2010

Since the autumn of 2009, 15 provinces including Hunan, Guangxi, Guizhou, Yunnan, Sichuan suffered heavy drought. Failure in water supply and crop losses in southwest China worsened due to no effective rainfall for over six months.

To help local people get through and recover from the disaster, Amity started its emergency relief work in March 2010. Programs including drinking water and food provision, irrigation equipment and well construction were implemented in nine counties in Yunnan, Guangxi and Guizhou, and a total of 86,000 people benefited from this program.

Yushu Earthquake 2010

Beijing time April 14, 2010, a 7.1-magnitude earthquake hit Qinghai Province in northwest China. The quake struck Yushu County at 7:49 a.m. with a depth of only 33 km, and the epicenter was only 30 km away from the downtown area of Yushu County of Yushu Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture. There have been several aftershocks, among which a 6.3-magnitude aftershock happened at 9:25 a.m. in the same day. Up till 6 p.m. May 30th 2010, a total of 2,698 people have been confirmed dead, 270 still missing, and 12,135 injured, including 1,434 severely injured. No less than 150,000 civilian houses collapsed in the earthquake and aftershocks.

Right after the earthquake, Amity Disaster Management Department staff contacted local partners and collected latest information. Then Amity initiated its contingency plan and updated latest news on the website constantly. Disaster Alert was distributed to domestic and overseas partners.

Three hours after the earthquake, an emergency assistance team, led by Amity's assistant General Secretary Mr. He Wen, composed by three Amity staff and three volunteers flew from Nanjing to Xining in the early morning on April 15, 2010 and then went directly to the earthquake affected areas. During the following days, Amity constantly assigned more staffs and volunteers to the quake areas. On May 3rd 2010, Amity also dispatched a voluntary team composed by ten professional caregivers to Xining. This team worked for over ten days in the First People's Hospital of Xining and Qinghai Red Cross Hospital and provided professional care to the wounded. Till the end of the emergency assistance phase, a total of 22 Amity staffs, 16 volunteers and 6 local partners went to the area for emergency assistance work in batches.

During the one month emergency assistance period, a total of eleven batches of relief materials were sent to the earthquake affected areas in Yushu Prefecture. Among these were 1,365 cartons of instant noodle (32,760 bags), 3,140 cartons of drinking water (75,360 bottles), 166,000 piece sausage, 125.5 ton rice, 108.5 ton flour, 97.22 ton vermicelli, 20,000 liters cooking oil, 418,984 box milk, 550 carton candles (60,500 pieces), 634 carton drugs, 8,001 warm clothes, 8,100 sets thermal shirt & trousers, 8,000 pair shoes, 3,000 set sanitary towel, 2,680 set quilts and 30 set photovoltaic power system. Meanwhile, a professional nursing team was set to Xining to provide direct service for injured people. Finally, altogether 43000 people from 89 villages, schools and hospitals benefited from the emergency program.
Rehabilitation and reconstruction activities including drinking water system, school facilities, training, and community center are still in planning and implementation.

Flood 2010

Since early June 2010, heavy rains hit most parts of southern China. The continuing heavy rain caused some big disasters, a total of 29 million of people were affected, 199 died, 123 were missing, and 2.37 million were evacuated.

Amity chose six hard-hit counties as its target areas and provided emergency relief service for over 25,000 people.

Rehabilitation and reconstruction activities including house reconstruction and irrigation system are still in implementation.

Zhouqu Landslide 2010

A devastating storm continuing over 40 minutes hit Zhouqu County in the midnight of August 7th 2010. Induced by the heavy rain, a devastating landslide with 500 meters wide and 5,000 meters long hit the northeast of the county. On August 11th, another landslide hit its two neighboring counties in Gansu Province. Up to August 26th, a total of 980,000 people were affected, 1500 died and 313 were missing.

Amity Emergency Response Team arrived in Zhouqu on August 9th and conducted assessment and relief work separately in Zhouqu, Chengxian and Huixian County. In one-month time, necessary supplies, including food, clothes and sanitation materials, were purchased and distributed to local residents. A total of 11,767 people from seven worst-hit townships benefited from the emergency relief work.

Besides emergency response, Amity also conducted rehabilitation and reconstruction work in Zhouqu and Hui county. Projects including women and children health care after disaster and school rehabilitation are still in implementation.

Case

Doing needs-based projects is one of the most important principles throughout Amity’s relief work. Only when people’s basic needs are satisfied, can they achieve their rights. Although emergency relief work is always efficiently conducted after any disaster, basic needs may still be in urgent shortage. Zhouqu Landslide serves as a good example.

Immediately after the landslide, central and local government assigned a lot of soldiers, doctors and rescue staff from different departments for rescue, health care and other emergency response work. Everything has been organized very well and effectively. However, when Amity staff visited the victims’ camps, they found the only food supplied were instant noodle and some biscuits. People could get something to fill their stomachs, but their needs of nutrition, daily sanitation, life habit and custom were left out of consideration.

After a detailed needs assessment, Amity purchased and distributed various materials such as: soap, towels, clothes, stoves and cooking oil. Given a set of toothpaste and toothbrush, one old lady was really excited. She said, “I have got toothache for many years, and I heavily depend on toothpaste and toothbrush. But I had no time to get them when I escaped from the house, and I failed to buy some these days, for all the markets and shops have been closed after the disaster. I suffer from toothache from time to time. Can you imagine how excited when I see the toothpaste and toothbrush?”

Education & International Exchange

The Education and International Exchange Division aims to contribute to educational development in China, promote cultural exchange programs between Chinese young people and those from overseas, while also help bridging the gap of education opportunities between east and west of China.

The projects of the Education and International Exchange Division give priority to less-developed areas and, in particular, to minority-nationality inhabited regions. Disadvantaged groups in comparatively more-developed areas of China also number among our beneficiaries.

Recently, the number of Amity Teachers Program teachers has been steadily declining. However, at the same time, the Amity Young Adults Program has been gradually developing, attracting more and more young volunteers from overseas. While teaching English at middle schools in China, these young volunteers also learn Chinese language, experience daily life in China and immerse themselves in to ordinary Chinese society.

Poverty remains in the vast rural areas of China, and this poverty affects students from such areas who desire a senior middle school education, a level of schooling which lies outside the “free tuition” period stipulated by the national policy of offering nine years of compulsory and free education to each child. Gifted students can be seen in rural areas who cannot afford the expense of completing a senior middle school education and who consequently have to drop out of school. In 2010, Amity provided food subsidies to such students from poor families in Lishui County and other counties in northern Jiangsu Province, thereby helping them not to have to make a choice between nutritious food or education.

Amity Teachers Program

For the 2010-2011 academic year, Amity has invited 21 foreign teachers to work as Amity teachers in China. These teachers come from Austria, Canada, Germany, Sweden, Switzerland, the UK and the USA. Among the 21 teachers, three are new to Amity. Most of this year’s Amity teachers are placed in teacher-training institutes in the western parts of China including the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region, the Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region and Gansu Province.

The extensive impact of the Amity Teachers Program

Karin Helmreich is from Austria, and she has been an Amity teacher for the last 17 years. Over the last two years, she has been teaching at Jiuquan Vocational and Technical College in Jiuquan, Gansu Province. In November 2010, Karin travelled to nearby Zhangye for an Amity regional conference and, by chance, encountered one of her former students whom she had previously taught in Wuwei, another city in Gansu Province. This student had graduated from her three-year diploma program in Wuwei and had passed a certain exam enabling her to enter a four-year BA degree program at Hexi College in Zhangye. Seeing her former foreign teacher once again, this student gleefully invited Karin to visit the dormitory which she shared with her classmates.

On entering the dorm room, Karin was surprised to find another former Wuwei student of hers. At the same time, Karin was overjoyed to learn that three other girls who shared the same dormitory room were also former students of other Amity teachers who had also taught previously in Gansu. Two of them had studied at Dingxi Teachers College, where current Amity teacher Angela Evans was once their foreign teacher. Meanwhile, the other student had studied at Hezuo Minorities Teachers College and had been taught by former Amity teachers Mick and Anne Kavanagh.

Karin was pleased to see five former students of different Amity teachers, all from different corners of Gansu province, and now all united in the same dormitory room pursuing the same goal. These students were making the best of the educational opportunities they had previously been offered at their small local colleges in poorer areas of Gansu Province. They had worked hard and successfully gained admission to a higher-level college in order to complete their education with a formal academic degree. They are also committed to serving as English teachers in their local communities in the future. Above all, all these students value the contribution of the different Amity teachers who have taught them at different times and in different places.

The Amity Summer English Program (SEP)

The Amity Summer English Program invites volunteers from overseas to provide oral English training to Chinese English teachers from less-developed areas.

In July 2010, 48 volunteers were invited from Canada, Ireland, the UK and the USA to come to China and provide a three-week oral English training course to teachers of English from primary and middle schools. The overseas volunteers were grouped into 12 teams and taught at 12 different schools in eight provinces. Amity placed most of the teams in north-western and south-western parts of China. Approximately 1,200 Chinese teachers benefited from this program.

The 2010 SEP continued giving priority to minority-nationality areas and less-developed regions in the western parts of China. Out of the 12 teams, eight were placed in western provinces, including: the Inner Mongolian Autonomous Region, the Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region, Gansu Province and Sichuan Province.

The Amity Young Adults Program (YAP)

The Amity Young Adults Program (YAP) is a cultural exchange program. It attracts young people from overseas to come and learn about China while teaching oral English skills to Chinese middle school students. At their host schools, the overseas volunteers teach 10 hours of English each week while receiving two hours of free Mandarin Chinese tuition and free lodging in return.
The Young Adults Program receives participants aged between 18-28 for periods ranging from six months to one year. It enables friendship to develop between Chinese and overseas young people.

In the 2010-2011 academic year, Amity placed 10 young volunteers from Germany and Norway in four middle schools in Gansu and Jiangsu provinces.

The Amity Service-Learning Projects (SLP)

Amity’s Service-Learning Project (SLP) links classroom learning to what goes on in the real world and encourages students to be helpful and productive in the service of others.

The Amity Service-Learning Project aims to attract young people from other nations to come to China and supplement their classroom studies back home with practical service while in China. It also seeks to give young people from overseas the opportunity to get to know China and to interact with their Chinese peers.

In 2010, 11 groups of 123 volunteers, coming from the USA, Denmark, Japan, Hong Kong and from various international schools within China, participated in various Amity Service-Learning Projects.

The Amity International Youth Exchange Program

Starting Summer 2009, the Amity International Youth Exchange Program has opened another door for Amity’s cultural exchange programs. Having traditionally played a role in hosting volunteers to China from overseas in the past, the Amity International Youth Exchange Program now makes it possible for Amity to also send Chinese young volunteers abroad.

On Amity’s recommendation, two young women from Chinese churches went to Norway in Summer 2010 for a one-year internship program. During their stay in Norway, the two young ladies learnt about youth mission, visited local Norwegian churches and NGOs, worked with local young people, and studied Norwegian culture.

The two volunteers are expected to return to China with rich experiences on social service and knowledge on the church in June 2011.
The Amity Student Sponsorship Program in Northern Jiangsu Province

In cooperation with the Pfang Association, Amity has continued sponsoring poor students from less-developed areas in northern Jiangsu province. In 2010, the number of sponsored students increased from last year's total of 149 to 193 students, with 92 of these studying at junior middle school level and 101 at senior middle school level.

The sponsored students all come from families plunged in to poverty due to the death of parent or both parents, or else due to chronic illness or disability among family members.

Legal Aid Project

Although China is developing economically, legal rights for disadvantaged groups, such as migrant workers, women from rural areas and people with impairment, can sometimes be difficult to achieve. Many among these disadvantaged groups know little about their legal rights, so they cannot protect their own rights properly when these are violated. It is also known that, because of a lack of funds, members of such disadvantaged groups will generally not seek legal redress from the courts when their rights are abused.

Working together with the Nanjing Municipal Centre for Legal Aid and the Yuhua District Centre for Legal Aid, Amity has been sponsoring both publicity about legal aid services as well as assisting with individual court cases.

In 2010, Amity provided support to 60 legal aid cases, as well as helping to print legal aid publicity materials and arranging legal aid publicity activities at the Andemen Labor Market Legal Aid Station in Nanjing. All the 60 supported legal aid cases were related to protecting the legal rights of women, children and migrant workers.

Through the publicity activities, many people gained more knowledge about their legal rights. And, after winning their cases, some members of disadvantaged groups were able to obtain the delayed salary or the payment for working extra hours which they were owed. Some also received compensation for work-related injuries.

To better serve the needs of the beneficiaries, a variety of activities were carried out by the project stuff. For example, project management flows were adjusted to the specific situation; new project brochures and e-magazines were designed to raise public awareness; guidebooks were made to provide information to FAQs; 36 exposure visits to different project sites were arranged for donors and volunteers to get first-hand experience; books, MP3 players and other school things were donated to some needy students; packs of moon cakes were distributed to children with caring hearts.

Stories

Rural Orphan Fostering Project of Amity achieved a great progress in 2010. Compared with 2009, the number of children increased by 1500. Nearly 50 children successfully entered high school through the entrance examination and 3 children were admitted to universities in Shanghai and Henan. Here we would like to share their stories with you.

Jia’s Story

Jia is the child we have sponsored since 2007. Jia’s father died from cancer in January, 2002. Shocked by her husband’s death, Jia’s mother had been suffering from mental disease since then and unfortunately died in a car accident on the highway in October, 2003, leaving four daughters alone, relying on each other. What’s more, because of financial difficulty, Jia’s three elder sisters dropped their study one after another. At that time, Jia was living with her third oldest uncle.

Due to father and mother’s successive passing away, she experienced the hardships of life at a very young age. However, this also helped her become especially sensible. At home, she helps her uncle with the housework consciously. At school, she concentrates on learning, studies very hard, respects her teachers and gets on well with her classmates. In recent years, Jia have been living on her own indomitably after her uncle and his whole family went out working in other cities. And she was admitted to the best local high school in July, 2009, ranking No.6 among the contestants from the whole county. When we met her in September, 2010, she told us that she wishes to be admitted to Beijing Foreign Studies University in the future so that she can realize her elder sisters’ university dream.
Lu's Story

Lu was a risible 11-year-old girl in 2004. Her father died from a disease in 2003, after which her mother remarried, leaving her and her brother with their grandparents. Her mother shut her ears and eyes to their appeals for help indifferently from that on. Suffered from diseases, Lu’s grandfather who was 79 years old could only lay in bed at that time. Aged as her grandmother was, she still did farm work for meager earnings to support the family and pay the children’s tuition fee. The grandma had been 77 years old then.

Faced with so many tribulations, Lu confronted life with smile and bravery. Not only did she study harder and harder, but also tried her best to find time to till land with her grandma. She always told her brother to be fortitudinous and thoughtful.

In the fifth summer after we began the aid, we received the good news from Lu that she entered a university in Henan Province for her excellent performance in study. Receiving the letter, I could easily recollect the scene we saw when we went to her home the second time in July, 2010. Lu’s grandpa had passed away for few years. Her grandma was over 80 and deaf but healthy may because of plenty cultivation as a kind of exercise. Lu’s younger brother had been a big boy. He is studying in high school and is preparing for the entrance examination of colleges. Their grandma always showed satisfied smile when talking about the children and moved to tears when thinking about your help. Lu hoped that she could make her grandma live a better life through her work.

On January 31st, 2010, 3 days before Chinese Spring festival, I called Lu asking about her exam results in the university. She, a girl who should have been on her way home, was still working in that city. She said that working during the Spring Festival could earn her more money. This would not only help her relieve the pressure of the tuition fee but also could be used for her younger brother to attend school and to buy something for her grandmother. Since the holiday wouldn’t be over until the end of February, Lu said that even if she went home after the spring festival, she could still spend a few days home and what’s more, the ticket price would be much cheaper. What a simple child! Her sincere words deeply moved me again.

We believe that because of the hardship she overcame with her optimism and kindness, Lu would absolutely enjoy a happy life in the future and would certainly be a warm support of her grandmother and her younger brother.
NGO Development Centre

Ever since its establishment in 2009, Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre, as an umbrella for social organizations, carried out active explorations on NGO incubation, capacity building, and platform building for communication in 2010.

Since its establishment, 12 community-based social organizations have been successfully incubated in the Centre and four of them have successfully finished their incubation process. On one hand, the Centre has developed a comprehensive system of training as well as evaluation on and supervision of NGOs. On the other, it has mobilized various resources to create a platform among government, academia, private sectors, and social organizations; encouraged more officials, scholars and volunteers to participate in the social service practice. With local government support, the Centre’s expansion was made possible. Besides Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre, another NGO Development Centre has been established in Baixia District, Nanjing in November, 2010. Meanwhile, the Centre has received plenty of requests for cooperation in cities like Nantong, Suzhou and so on. The Chinese Communist Party Central Committee has also published a newsletter to promote the work pattern of the Centre. In addition, Amity NGO Development Centre’s “Gardener of Civil Society” won the top award of China Social Innovation in December, 2010.

The establishment of Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre is Amity’s new attempt for exploring the development of NGOs and social construction under social demands. Therefore, clarifying the Centre’s mission, vision and the main services was the primary task for 2010. In the board meeting at the beginning of the year, the board members decided that the mission of the centre was to accelerate the development of NGOs, to explore various paths of social construction, and to promote the growth of civil society. The vision is to improve the development of social organizations to become an important force for the construction of a harmonious society. The major services include social organization incubation, NGO capacity building, voluntary teams building, small project support and communication platform building and so forth. In addition, the Centre has played an active role in searching and developing resources such as human, project, social as well as overseas resources for cooperation.

1. Social Organization Incubation

Incubation work focused on two points in 2010. First was to form a sustainable and efficient incubation pattern in order to be special among competitions. Second was to increase the number of incubated social organizations and incubator bases. Meanwhile, the Centre is also exploring the new incubation patterns, emphasizing on the screening and the funding of the social organizations.

Although Nanjing has a large number of NGOs, over 90% of them are amateur organizations that are unable to provide professional services while the other 10%, who can serve, are facing challenges in organizational management, self-discipline and sustainability. Therefore, to bring up more NGOs on board and enhance them with better capacity is one of the core missions of Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre.

Currently, there have been 12 NGOs incubated in the Centre, working actively in the community service areas such as environmental protection, senior care, the differently abled support, rehabilitation and education for kids with special needs, cultural heritage protection and community intermediary services and so on.

The Incubation process includes office support, organization evaluation, strategic planning, professional training, business consulting, publicity and small project support.

2. NGO Capacity Building

A series of courses have been tailored by Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre, including NGO development, effective communication, SWOT Analysis, team building, volunteer management, finance management, project management, etc. Some courses were taught by Amity staff with full field experiences. And other courses were carried out by experts and tutors invited from universities and other successful NGOs. 20 training sessions were held in 2010 and 209 people were benefited through the capacity building trainings.

3. Research and Evaluation

By connecting experts and resources at home and abroad, and by constantly working towards improving NGO development and training models, the Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre has identified suitable methods and materials for building capacity in grassroots organizations. Meanwhile, the Centre has researched on models and methods of evaluation for NGOs in order to encourage healthy, self-disciplined development of NGOs.

4. Building Communication Platform

The Centre has organized regular workshops every month to promote cooperation and communication within and between NGOs, government, enterprises, academics, and media in order to share information, strengthen cooperation among social sectors and achieve win-win goal.

Workshops held in the past six months were associated with volunteers’ management, environmental protection, ethnic minorities, efficient communication, community theater and migrants’ children and so forth. The Centre also invites many scholars and experts from academia and private sectors to attend so that more NGOs could gain some experiences from them. Up till now, more than 400 people are benefited through the Salons.

The second round of Social Organizations Development and Innovation Forum was held on August 2010. The topic this time was “Promoting Harmonious Society—NGO Incubation and Development”.

Beside Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre’s establishment, the Amity Foundation also established an NGO Development Centre in Baixia District in 2010. This Centre is the second of its kind supported by Baixia Civil Affairs Bureau.

Social Effect and Impact Analysis

The establishment of Nanjing Amity NGO Development Centre is a new and important exploration and expansion in the urban communities. It is also functioning as a public support organization. The Centre has played an active role in advocating policies, building public service environment, improving the development of the NGO sector and enlarging the international impact of Amity.

1. Policy Advocator

The Nanjing NGO Development Centre is the first exploratory project of its kind in Jiangsu Province. The project not only demonstrated the model for NGOs development, but also drew great attention from all walks of society. Jiangsu Province has also promoted NGOs’ development in its jurisdictional areas, requiring the establishment of the municipal NGO Development Centre in all over the province. With the Centre’s leading force, two new NGO Development Centres have been established. Serving as a flagship of NGOs Development, the Nanjing NGO Development Centre was also trying to relay the training experiences down to the other cities in order to encourage more organizations to grow and to support the cause.

2. Service Provider

Besides serving as a policy advocate, the Centre also put a great emphasis on the development of public service personnel, projects and organizations in order to promote the development of NGOs comprehensively. By building platforms through the forums and workshops, more and more volunteers and social organizations have generated interest in public service and charity work.

3. Capacity Builder

The Centre is a platform for NGOs from home and abroad to share and exchange, which has not only deepened understanding on civil society in China and other countries, but created opportunities for international cooperation.
Public Health & HIV/AIDS Prevention

In 2010, Amity continued in three areas of public health care, supported by government policy and guideline “accelerating the development of medical and health care reform, to provide the basic medical and health system as a public goods, and give priority to meeting basic health needs of the people.” In this context, Amity has committed to this direction during the year around the following three areas:

1. Continued to improve primary health care services network system, upgrade the professional skills of local residents by training medical personnel so as to provide safe, effective and convenient health services. Based on this, Amity tried to promote the health record keeping system in order to establish a health care information network;

2. Completing the combine disease prevention and community integrated development, to enhance the comprehensive capacity of local community, develop community cohesion, and to build a sustainable and harmonious community;

3. Integrating resources in order to take “health promotion” as the core content of the community to promote the overall improvement of sanitary conditions.

Concept of HIV/AIDS prevention program

By the end of October, 2010, the population of people living with HIV/AIDS (PLWHA) in China is reported to have reached 370,393, including 132,440 cases of live AIDS patients and 68,315 cases of the deceased. In 2009, the joint survey of the China Ministry of Health and UNAIDS showed that at the end of 2009, the estimated survival PLWHA had reached 740,000, including 105,000 AIDS patients. It was estimated that the number of newly-infected people reached to 48,000 and 26,000 individuals died due to the disease related with HIV/AIDS.

In recent years, the epidemic situation of HIV/AIDS in China takes some new characteristics in three aspects: Firstly, The HIV/AIDS epidemic continued to rise, but the rising speed shows a slowing down trend. Secondly, sexual transmission becomes the main transmission means and the transmission rate in MSM (men who have sex with men) increase evidently. Thirdly, the epidemic is serious in some areas and certain groups of people. The reported PLWHA of Yunnan, Guangxi, Henan, Sichuan, Xinjiang and Guangxi account for 77.1% of the total national.

Based on the national HIV/AIDS prevention and control strategy, Amity drew the concept of HIV/AIDS prevention project as to the general concept of HIV/AIDS prevention project of Amity Foundation in the year of 2010 is to conduct community based HIV/AIDS integrated project in high prevalence areas. Through comprehensive intervention and full mobilization, Amity popularized the HIV/AIDS prevention knowledge and helped local to establish HIV/AIDS control and prevention system.
On December 1, 2010, the World AIDS Day, Wen Jiabao, Premier of the State Council of the People’s Republic of China, arrived in Liangshan Yi Autonomous Prefectures, Sichuan Province to inspect HIV/AIDS prevention work and said: “We must adhere to the policy of prevention in the first place and integrating prevention with control, prevent legally and scientifically, to combine HIV/AIDS prevention with promoting economic and social development, combine with poverty alleviation, drug control, to adopt comprehensive measure, address both symptoms and root causes and effectively control the spread of HIV/AIDS.” Premier Wen Jiabao’s words coincided with the direction Amity has been going on all these years. It can be seen from this that the exploratory work of Amity’s HIV/AIDS prevention program, to conduct community based integrated HIV/AIDS prevention work, has been heading in the right direction, which accords with the goal of achieving sustainable development and building a harmonious society.

Targeting at high-risk groups, such as MSM (Men who has sex with man), sex workers, we also adopted target-oriented projects. For example, we conducted HIV/AIDS prevention project among MSM in Chongqing, and we also carried out HIV/AIDS prevention work among sex workers in Guangxi. According to the latest HIV/AIDS epidemic tread, we specially focused on the middle-aged group among MSM, who had become high-risk group.

Project Implementation Monitoring Management

Altogether 19 projects were implemented this year, benefiting over 1.2 million people in 9 provinces / autonomous regions and 17 cities / counties.

An Angel of Miao Minority Village

(Primary Health Care Pilot Project in Majiang County, Guizhou Province)

Lei Xuezhen is a 44-year-old health worker in the clinic of Xian’e Miao Minority village. She would never forget the day she first came to Xian’e village, on April 20, 1998. Her unceasing love for her work has lasted for 12 years. Though she is not young any more, her passion continues to grow. The cabinet in her clinic is filled up with different types of traditional Chinese medicine. To better serve the local villagers who prefer traditional Chinese medicine, Ms. Lei decided to study more in this field. She found a suitable course in a medical school in Shijiazhuang, a city in North China. It’s challenging for her because she had never travelled that far before, and the tuition was quite costly. Supported by her family, Ms. Lei managed to complete the course at her own expenses. On her return, she has been highly recognized by the local government and the villagers, and also recommended as candidate for folk health worker in Qiandongnan Prefecture by the county technology department. Besides, she has been advocating enthusiastically the projects of biogas construction and toilets renovation, for she believed that the promotion of local medical standard not only depends on the improvement of medical service, but also on the life style of local villagers. Ms. Lei, together with the project staff, made great efforts to encourage the villagers to build biogas digesters. At present, there are more than 60 families using this clean energy. In the eyes of local villagers, this silent, small woman is a beautiful, kind-hearted angel of the Miao village.
Flying Wings

(A narration by an AIDS orphan)

(Jingpo community development and HIV/AIDS prevention second-phase project in Longchuan County, Yunnan province)

I am a nine-year-old boy from Jingpo ethnic village and I’m now in the fourth grade. I haven’t been living healthily since I was very young. Sometimes I was too sick to walk. My mum took me to the village health worker. She gave me some medicine, and told me that if I would take it regularly, those little insects (HIV) inside my body would disappear, and then I could grow up quickly and go to school like other children. I was very happy and kept on taking the medicine every day. I’ve grown taller and heavier, and now I can go to school by myself.

My friends and I took part in an activity organized by our school today and we played many games. My teacher taught us how to control our moods and communicate with other children. I used to be too shy to talk. Through the activity, my teacher, Mr. Zhang, encouraged us to share our dreams with others. I could feel his love and care, and finally I conquered the fear of speaking publicly. Feeling a little bit nervous, I said excitedly that to be a flag-raiser is a beautiful dream deeply buried in my heart. What an honor to raise the flag! I really admire those flag-raisers. I believe one day, I would become one of the flag-raisers at my school, and throw the flag into the air with my own hands and raise it. I would stand under the flag and salute to it with the highest respect. At this moment, I have the courage to speak out my dream, and I believe it can be realized someday in the future.
Publicity and Resource Development

In 2010, with the support of Amity media, including online and paper publications, Amity achieved better public recognition and attractiveness. Amity targets on publicity and fund raising to both established groups as well as common individuals. With these efforts, the fundraising in Mainland China has increased by 81.3% in 2010 comparing with 2009.

Publications

Amity made every effort to make her paper publications readable and thought-provoking. Articles in Amity News-Letter (ANL) are written with perceptive analysis of the first-hand experiences and rational thinking on the rapidly changing situation. Among 2010 paper publications, three special editions of the Amity 25th anniversary celebration, creatively designed and carefully edited, served as a successful model of ANL’s magazine-orientated style transformation. “China Development Brief”, an authoritative publication in NGO field, once commented in its autumn quarterly on ANL’s transformation, “Unneglectable change has been observed in some internal publications of several NGOs. With their target readers—their clients, members or staffs in NGOs—in mind, they have taken heated issues into consideration, focusing on climate change, volunteer capability building and social problems. In some publications of this kind, such as Friends of Nature Newsletter and the Amity Newsletter, profound reflections on various public topics have been included. An attempt of integrating into the mainstream can be seen in recent Amity Newsletters. The adjustment in the editing team ensured the successful transformation of content and style.”

Online Donation

In 2010, being fully aware of the importance of online publicity, Amity adjusted official website to a “fundraising oriented, comprehensive web portal”. With the goal set, the revised plan has been carefully designed, which was based on scientific analysis on the following factors: domestic netizens’ demand for online public welfare, netizens’ habits of using the web, characteristics of Amity projects, advantages and disadvantages of the former website. The new official website was released on the 25th anniversary of Amity. A variety of popular payment channels, including TenPay, PayPal and Yeepay, were widely open to the online donors. Eye-catching web pages have been designed for popular projects like “Online Donation for Orphans”, “Amity Bakery”, “Back to School”. Visual attraction and user-friendly design ensured the rapid increase in the hits of the new website.
Fund-raising Mode

To make it more convenient for donors, Amity worked with Lakala Payment Service and Online Banking of China Construction Bank to further our collaboration. Besides, Amity started to cooperate with China Mobile (Jiangsu) to run the “Amity-Mobile Platform for Public Welfare Donation”.

The year 2010 witnessed Amity’s ice-breaking cooperation with government authorities for fund-raising. First, government officials of Huaqiaolu Community called on the local corporations to raise fund for “Southwest Drought”, and the donations reached more than CNY100,000.

Volunteer Work

In 2010, Amity focused on offering volunteers more opportunities to serve the society. For instance, Amity invited many backbone volunteers to join the annual exposure visit to enable information sharing and capacity building through various activities.

Amity continued its effort to publicize and raise fund through on-campus activities like “charity bakery sale” and “One Yuan Donation”. Apart from recruiting and training volunteers for Amity’s 25th Anniversary Ceremony, Loving-heart Dessert House, Amity Bakery, Amity has entered the campus to introduce Amity’s philosophy and experience through lectures on public welfare.

 Represents of Amity volunteers visiting orphans in Yimeng Mountain area.

Media Publicity

Amity has continued bilateral relationships with media to achieve win-win from both parties. The year 2010 witnessed several serious natural disasters. When disaster happened, Amity always tried to send staff to the spot immediately, and to contact the media on line. During the process, Amity offered various proposals and held different types of activities to attract public involvement in social welfare. Besides, Amity has invited some representatives from the media partners to further develop our cooperation with the public media.
Social Service Centre

mity Social Service Centre has provided social rehabilitation services for the mentally challenged youth to develop independent skills to adapt to the living and working needs in society. Besides, the centre has also offered early intervention programs for children with Autism, which helped them in self expression and communication.

In 2010, with government support and overseas assistance, the centre successfully held the First International Autism Forum and officially inaugurated the Amity Senior Care Centre. The two crucial events marked a new milestone in the centre’s achievements and sustainability.

In 2010, 22 students joined the various vocational training courses held by the Amity Home of Blessings, including weaving course, laundry workshop and handicraft workshop. The teachers spared no effort in providing students with all kinds of social activities through environmental protection action, charity fair, etc. The Home of Blessings engaged 38 students throughout the year and made regular visits to some families for home service to 33 families. The well-organized family program was very popular among the students and their parents.

A series of innovation have been taken in the Amity Bakery to re-shape its role as a social enterprise. Mr. Kwong Chun Chung, Vice Chair of Hong Kong Bakery and Confectionary Association, has served as the voluntary chief supervisor at the Bakery and developed some new popular products. A professional sales manager was also employed for marketing. As a result, the annual revenue increased. With the growing reputation, the Amity Bakery expanded with two new departments: Marketing and Vocational Training Departments, and more mentally challenged youth have benefited from the expansion.

The Amity Children Development Centre works with children with autism and their families. During 2010, the young and energetic team of the Amity Children Development Centre provided consultancy service for over 100 parents. In total, twenty children with Autism joined the daycare course, three in the half-day care course, and six students in special course. Regular contacts with their parents have been kept through phone and email. Seven students graduated from the centre in 2010 and continued further study in special education schools, and one student was able to continue his education in a regular kindergarten.

The Amity Senior Care Centre was inaugurated in November, 2010 for services for the elderly in community. To better understand their needs, the centre carried out a survey, and based on which launched diversified programs. To bring the community together and to enrich the life of the elderly, the centre carried out a series of activities including gala celebrations organized on holidays, free health consultations and physical examinations, etc. According to the centre’s plan, day care and meal service will be provided to needy people in the near future.
The Amity Bakery

In 2010, the Amity Bakery seized every opportunity to make production promotion and to gain reputation. For example, the bakery promotes health gift package in Spring Festival, romance chocolate package on Valentine’s Day, ginger cookies in Christmas, western food gift package in New Year’s Day.

In the summer of 2010, Amity Bakery opened an online store in Taobao, one of the biggest website for online shopping, with much assistance of many volunteers in online promotion. It has now got high ranking reputation and aims at developing into one of the most successful and credential NGO stores.

Professional Capacity Building of the Amity Children Development Centre

The centre invited the therapists from Scotland and USA to supervise its work and provide training courses for the teachers. The center also invited more than ten famous experts to give professional training on autism and updated the current systematic knowledge in the autistic education field for the teachers. On the other hand, six staffs in the center visited Xiangyang, Chongqing, Hong Kong, and Guangzhou for further professional training, in order to keep in touch with the trainers in other organizations and to learn the most advanced and systematic management and professional skills.

In order to provide more educational rehabilitation opportunities for autistic people, and to have a deeper contact with other related organization, the Amity Children Development Centre invited many experts from USA, Scotland, Hong Kong and Guangzhou. More than 170 people participated in the first Amity International Autism Forum. Moreover, the centre held many training courses for various practical skills.

Vocational Training Program for Mentally Challenged People

In 2010, the Amity Bakery evaluated trainees career skills and made an elaborate vocational training program plan. With this plan, trainees got better training so that they could improve their skills step by step, and become more satisfied and confident towards their lives. In order to allow more young people with mental challenges to have vocational training, three new trainees were taken. Based on the professional assessment and vocational training, these new members have already learned the skills to fold the packing box, to make egg tart and to clean the baking dishes. Their improvement ignited the parents’ hope to life.

From February, 2010 to January, 2011, the turnover of handicraft with plastic beads has reached to 20,000 yuan. Now three students can work independently and give help to the other members. Besides the Amity Bakery, Amity continued the weaving training and started the laundry workshop as well. All these workshops will continually provide vocational training for youth with mentally challenges.

Timely Help

Xia Ying, a student in the Amity Home of Blessings, used to laugh a lot. Unfortunately, her grandpa and her mum died one after the other within a week. The sad news hit the girl like a bolt out of blue, and she remained silent all day long. Now she has only her father with her in the family. The poor family could not afford the funeral expenses, for they had used up all the savings for the medical treatments. Xia Ying and her father faced a desperate situation.

Learning about this, the Home of Blessings organized a donation for Xia Ying. All the students, led by the monitor Fu Ye, gave their saved money to her. The donation also received the support from their parents and the teachers. When the representatives reached her house with the money, Xia Ying’s father was about to sell off all that they had to collect money. Tears came to his eyes as he accepted the money, “This is what we really needed!”

It was a small sum of money but full of love. Most of the students were from poor families, and they earned every coin by pasting envelopes, stringing beads, and doing other hand work. Their selfless friendship lessened Xia Ying’s grief, and brought the sunshine to her life.

Love Surrounds the Moon

The year 2010 was the third year of the Amity Bakery’s moon cake promotion. Unlike other firms in the moon cake campaign, the bakery highlighted the theme of “Love-sharing Moon cake Donation” by inviting people online to donate moon cakes for the elderly and orphans.

The campaign turned out to be a great success. Shortly after it was launched, the website appealing for donations received over 18,000 hits. Donors from China and elsewhere emptied their pockets to pay for several hundred boxes of moon cakes.

According to the previous experience, the preparation work started quite early under the technical consultant Mr. Kwong Chun Chung’s guidance. Detailed schedule was planned, more volunteers recruited and trained, and thus productivity was greatly increased for this time. In more than one month, the bakery operated in shifts round the clock. Once a woman volunteer was ill, her husband replaced her voluntarily to ensure working progress. Although Aunt Liu and Xiao Yao, the apprentice had to go to the hospital to look after their sick families in the evenings, both of them stood in their places during the daytime. Giving up the time to look after his weak wife, Mr. Kwong stuck to his research work in the bakery. With their unremitting efforts, an eye-catching moon cake with diameter of 35 cm came into being, and symbolized the success of this year’s activity.
Social Welfare

A mity’s Social Welfare projects always aim to provide equal opportunities and better conditions to the disadvantaged children and young adults with special needs.

In 2010, to benefit 6937 people directly, and 30,000 people indirectly. The projects cover 18 counties and 52 cities in 12 provinces / municipalities.

With the goal to help and empower the disadvantaged groups in society, Amity’s social welfare projects have been working on finding the needs of the target groups, the orphans, children and young adults with special needs, and integrate with much social resources as we can to help them to obtain equal participation, self development and to improve the quality of their lives.

Medical and Rehabilitation Projects

Cataract Surgeries for Blindness Prevention

In spite of being a curable disease, cataract remains the number one cause of blindness in China, accounting for nearly 50% of all cases. According to information released from the 2009 NGO/China Ministry of Health Coordination Meeting, cataract surgical coverage in China stands at about 35.7%. In line with Amity’s commitment to sustainable development, the Amity Blindness Prevention Project continued in the year 2010. By providing consumables and necessary ophthalmic equipment to the project hospitals, giving trainings to the ophthalmologists and grass-roots health workers and advocating for the establishment of multi-level price system, affordable, accountable and accessible cataract surgery is been made possible for the poor patients.

3928 cases of cataract surgeries have been carried out in Yunnan, Hunan and Hebei;

5 cataract surgeons, 12 optometrists, 650 village doctors for basic prevention of blindness have been trained.

Multidisciplinary Therapy and Rehabilitation for Children with Cleft-lip and Palate (CLP)

In cooperation with Hengshui People’s Hospital of Hebei Province (Harrison International Peace Hospital) and Jiangsu Provincial Stomatolgy Hospital, Amity has set up a pilot medical care and rehabilitation project for providing comprehensive treatment to children with CLP in poor rural areas. The project aims to introduce advanced concept of cleft care concept from abroad, support the local hospital to build up a multidisciplinary medical team which can provide good quality cleft care, as well as improving the access to long-term cleft care service for CLP patients.

22 patients (12 from Hengshui and 10 from Nanjing) have been sponsored to take treatments and rehabilitation for CLP; one doctor has received training on Orthodontics.

Hopeful Heart: Medical Assistance for Children with Congenital Heart Deformities

Hopeful Heart is a volunteers group of foreign women in Nanjing, dedicated to raise funds necessary to make the medical treatment of children with congenital heart disease possible. In most cases, treatment implies an expensive scenario of heart surgery and special care. The project offers support to hearts disease surgery.

Cooperated with 4 hospitals and sponsored 45 children with congenital Heart Deformities.

Treatments, Rehabilitation and Development for Leprosy Victims

Through cooperation with Zhenjiang 359 Hospital, the project is aimed to help those polio victims from poor families to receive combined medical rehabilitation in terms of surgery, therapy and orthotics. This project has contributed to prevention of deformity; improve the function of polio victims and their ability of daily living. Most of the beneficiaries are young adults who are attending universities or are employed as a worker.
Leprosy victims not only suffer from physical disabilities, but also suffer from great social discrimination. Amity cooperates with the Centers for Disease Control in Jiangsu Province to improve the quality of life for those leprosy victims, as well as contribute to eliminate public discrimination on leprosy victims.

Disseminated 3000 “Know More about Leprosy” Brochure and through this way have found 6 patients; Funded 5 patients for amputation; Provided 2004 boxes of chopstick for 501 leprosy patients; Trained of 600 village doctors for leprosy prevention and treatment; Offer 1 nursing staff for 42 elder leprosy patients; Condolences to 80 leprosy patients in Qinglong Shan leprosy village, and purchased warm clothing for winter.

Rehabilitation for Children with Cerebral Palsy

Treatment of cerebral palsy requires long term multidisciplinary rehabilitation. In China, lack of qualified rehabilitation staff and resources are in great conflict with the increasing numbers of cerebral palsy children. Many children with cerebral palsy don’t have access to effective rehabilitation service or not able to afford the costly therapy service, thus they lost the opportunity to develop daily living skills and lead a qualify life with mobility and dignity, which has brought great financial and psychological burden to the families. The project offers both financial and technical support to two local partners in Jiangsu and Sichuan to develop a sustainable rehabilitation model.

Days with my children in Preschool class

Tong Li, teacher at Xuzhou Special Education School

When I took over the class of these blind children, I had a kind of feeling that I would carry on this career with my heart, I would help those special children to learn more, to grow up to be a strong young adult. The first week of the new semester was in chaos. Those kids in preschool class did not have any basic idea about school, class, or politeness. They were unwilling to communicate with others, so the teachers needed to repeat one movement again and again to help them understand it. Some of the kids would bite you or tear your clothes when you were trying to get close to them. The first day left me with darkness of great failure.

After giving it careful thoughts, I realized that I should make friends with the children first. Having their acceptance and intimacy would be the first step for my work. Beside of regular communication, some small tricks might help, too. On the day of Li Xinyu’s birthday, I invited the whole class to guess who the happiest child was for that day. When other students were thinking, I noticed Li Xinyu was tittering. At last he could not help shouting out, "it’s me!” I kept asking, "But why?” He answered, “Today is my birthday!” Then, I encouraged his classmates to sing a birthday song for him, and to give him some beautiful greetings. He was so excited. From then on, he was very willing to come to me and talk more frequently with me. After the New Year holiday, he came to me and said with a shy smile, "Ms. Tong, I missed you so much!” His sweet, tender voice reached to the deep bottom of my heart.

Gradually, I have established a close relationship with my students, and my office was their wonderland. Every morning, they would like to come to my office and say ‘Good morning’ to me. They felt much freer to chat with me, and sometimes they even tried to give some "orders" to me, such as: to turn on the music video, to play with them, etc. I believed that they considered me more than their teacher.
The Amity Foundation Hong Kong Office

The Hong Kong Office (HKO) has been chartered to provide support to Amity’s Nanjing Headquarters in: providing direct services, raising resources, advocacy including publicity and public relations to promote our vision and capacity building for the organisation. The Year 2010 witnessed the 25th Anniversary of Amity’s founding in 1985. The celebrations in Nanjing and Hong Kong were occasions when partners from Hong Kong and overseas joined hands in commemorating the quarter of a century of service to the poor and needy in China. These are documented in the following paragraphs together with some highlights of the HKO’s work during the year.

Anniversary Celebrations

The Charity Dinner held on 18 June 2010 as part of the Hong Kong 25th Anniversary celebrations was an occasion when friendships were renewed and Amity’s enduring vision was revisited. Almost all of our local partners were present and many pledges for continued support were received. The moving testimonies of disaster relief workers and participants of our other programmes touched the heart of many. Sizeable donations have since been received for our major projects like Clinics, Living Water, Disaster Relief and Service Learning. Performances during the evening by talented young people underscored our resolve to support education for the next generation.

The celebrations in Nanjing were preceded by project visits to Guizhou, Guangxi, Yunnan and Sichuan, in which a lot of our overseas and Hong Kong partners took part. To avoid wasting resources, the traditional “Easter Tour” for overseas friends had been combined with these visits. Invariably, participants had found the visits to be very useful in understanding how we are able to sustain our “Love in Action” efforts. Many concur with our view that a participative and holistic model of implementation would be the best means to help village communities develop healthily. There was also much praise for Amity’s social construction efforts, which gave the communities a much more harmonious fabric on completion of our projects.

Disaster Relief and Reconstruction

2010 will be remembered as the year when China suffered no less than 5 major disasters that followed in quick succession. Thus, disaster relief and reconstruction remained to be one of our major task areas. Working closely with our colleagues in Nanjing, the post disaster needs were analysed and the HKO articulated requests for funding subsidies from the HKSAR Government. We are most grateful that for the sympathetic support from the Hong Kong Disaster Relief Fund for promptly providing the much needed funds to mount these relief efforts. A summary of HKO’s humanitarian aid efforts in 2010 is as follows:

Our reconstruction work on the aftermath of the 2008 Sichuan Earthquake continued in 2010. Notably, the rehabilitation projects supported by Deloitte, Touche, Tomatsu amounting to RMB 1.7 million has largely been completed. The remaining project Yuwang Miao School in Qishan County, Shaanxi rebuilt with a subsidy of RMB 1,150,000 was nearing completion and will be ready for use in Spring 2011.

The re-building of a wing of Jintang School in Chengdu had been completed with funds raised in the Charity Dinner in Hong Kong.

The Panzhihua School was rebuilt thanks to the joint effort of the HKCCC schools. Their representatives went in June to share the joy of its reopening. The subsequent visit to Chengdu and the Jintang School site gave them another glimpse of the challenges of the aftermath of the Sichuan Earthquake.

Village Clinics

As one of the projects endorsed as a CGI item in December 2008, building village clinics has been one of the flagship undertakings of HKO. In the wake of a slow-down in donations after the financial tsunami in 2009, activities picked up again after the Rotary Club of Hong Kong Harbour expressed an interest to help. The exploratory visit by the Ms Belinda Yeung, their Chairlady, and a number of senior members to Cengong, Guizhou had persuaded them that the poor villagers were in dire need of better medical and health services. On returned they made plans for a three-year support programme to include building the village clinic, enhancing the medical equipment and subsidizing the village doctor. This 3-in-1 approach was an innovative way to reduce villagers’ medical costs. A gala dinner was then organised which was well supported by many Hospital Authority officials and like-minded Rotarians. As a result, 10 villages in Cengong are now enjoying the much improved services thanks to the hard work of this Rotary Club.

Living Water Project

Following the keen reception by schools of our public seminar in 2009, the Living Water Project was launched in early 2010. The key components of the projects are (1) raising funds to provide safe drinking water for remote villages in China, (2) raising awareness among young Hong Kong people of the importance of water conservation. This we hoped to achieve through working closer with schools. Experiential learning trips to some of Amity’s water project sites without safe-drinking water would be a core part of this thrust.
The exploratory visit to Sansui, Guizhou in April 2010 was the curtain-raiser. Principals and teachers of partner school took the lead in trying to understand first-hand the plight of these villagers. On return, they have joined the other 8 schools as partners to further this worthy cause. Many innovative ways such as a dress-casual day had been used to raise the necessary building funds. To-date, the money raised had enabled one village to start enjoying clean and safe drinking water.

The SKH Women’s League, who raised funds for the Suoqiao Water Project made another visit to Guizhou in October. They braved the elements and the steep terrain to visit the Tianma Village where they shared a profound spiritual experience with the local congregation. They also witnessed personally how difficult life is, particularly for the old and the fragile, as people had to go long distances in order to fetch clean water. On return, the SKH women had pledged to donate money that would enable Amity to provide a water supply system for the villagers concerned.

One of our regular donors, Dr Gallant Ho had also kindly donated some money that would enable us to build another water system. So in sum, there are sufficient funds for us to consider building the third water system for villages in dire need of clean water.

To improve our understanding of the situation, HKO colleagues had attended a Water Forum in Nanjing during which important aspects such as pollution, conservation, best practices were share. Another colleague joined the Ecumencial Water Network meeting in the Philippines and brought back useful insights on how to combat this rather entrenched problem.

University for Girls Project

Following past successes, we obtained enough donations in 2010 to support the university education for 95 girls from impoverished families to pursue their dreams for a university degree. It was heartening to meet former beneficiaries of this scheme during their reunion in April and to witness the dramatic changes of these talented young ladies from their shy former selves into vivacious individuals who were on their way to a bright future.
Rural Orphans Project

The Orphans project has had staunch support from the Rhenish Church over the years. This year many of their church members, including Miss LEE Yuen Ling, are shouldering the major part of the funds to support the living expenses of 98 orphans in the rural areas. Miss LEE should be commended for her enthusiasm in keeping this project going.

Guangzhou Charity Shop Project

The rights of use of the donated premises in Guangzhou had finally been cleared. Through the determination and efforts of our full-time volunteer Mr. Philip LAM, the two blocks have been renovated to accommodate a sales outlet, a salon for artwork, living areas and storage space for a charity shop. Art exhibitions are already lined up after the Spring Festival. Hopefully, profits from the sale of donated items and artwork from such masters as Mr. He Qi would generate a continuous stream of resources to support Amity's projects.

Service Learning Project

The implementation of the New Senior Secondary Curriculum in Hong Kong focusing more on Liberal Studies, National education, and Independent Education Research is encouraging education institutions in Hong Kong to broaden the education of their students. In tandem, local churches are also trying to find ways to nurture their young leaders. Amity with its long tradition of serving needy communities all over China is in the best position to capitalize on these developments. Hence, as part of the HKO's vision, we intend to work with schools and churches to nurture the youth in the years ahead so that a cadre of young people would be built up, who would understand the situation on the Mainland and be prepared to champion the cause of serving the needy people there. We have already started the campaign to increase engagement with such organisation and so far the response has been encouraging.

Advocacy and Awareness

The new Chinese Website hosted by the HKO was operational after many hours of hard work by Miss Tsai Han. This new window has now become a power tool to showcase some of Amity's work and is starting to attract browsing and even donations.

Our advocacy work continued through the printing of the Amity Newsletter (ANL) and the maintenance of the English website, enabling readers to have a better understanding of China and her challenges. When Beate Engelen, the former Editor of ANL returned to Germany in July, the role was taken by Mr. Anders Granberg, who is fully funded by FELM for a year. We are most grateful to our partners in FELM, who shared our advocacy goals in the ANL.
The face-lift to the English Website by Anders has provided readers with a more user-friendly interface to better understand our work.

We continue to produce the printed version of the Amity News Service (ANS) as well as to host the website of the same name, where users get a lot of information about churches in China. The access rate of the website evidenced the continued interest in Christians and Churches in China as the number of Christians rises dramatically over the last few years.

Mr. Kum Hiu Fung took charge of the Hong Kong Messenger, a newsletter in traditional Chinese Characters with information on Amity projects. After careful reflections, the quarterly newsletter was replaced by the half-yearly “Action”. The extended pages of this monogram allowed for more in-depth treatment of any subject that could garner more support for the related projects. The first one on “Village Clinics” seemed to be well received and the second one on “Water” would be the harbinger for our “Walk for Living Water” event in March 2011.

In order to bring China and Amity’s work closer to people in Hong Kong, numerous visits and talks were given to schools and church groups. Arising from these and also resulting from other outreach programmes we have organised 4 visits to our project sites. All participants returned with a refreshed insight into challenges in China and some even started to raise funds on our behalf.

AIDS Education

The concept of South-South Exchanged espoused in 2007 was tried out early this year. Through the generous support of UEM and Mission 21, Dr. Safiya DOMA joined the HKO. Her portfolio included work in the field of HIV & AIDS as well as Diakonia and women ministry. Regrettably, after some exploratory visits to the Mainland, she was refused a visa without any explanations why. After months of soul-searching and in consideration of the uncertainty over whether she would be permitted entry during the remaining part of the year, all parties agreed that it would be in Safiya’s interest that she returned to her home country in November. Disappointing as this outcome may seem, valuable lessons have been learnt as to how to proceed with South-South Exchange in future.

Capacity Building

The increased HKO local profile and activity has drawn heavily on our human resources and it was clear that without engaging more volunteers, our further development would be impeded. The success of the Mr Kwong Chun Chung, the master baker who led the transformation of Amity Bakery into an active social enterprise, has convinced us that lining up professional expertise in Hong Kong to facilitate Amity projects would be strategically useful. Thus, we have been active in attracting volunteers from various walks of life to help out both in office administration and project work in 2010.

The year will be remembered as one when volunteers’ enthusiasm to help has surpassed our expectation. Mr. Philip Lam had been instrumental in keeping projects such as “University for Girls” and “Tree Planting” running. Mr. Leo LO Kwong Fai, another staunch supporter, has not relented in “School Rebuilding” and opened up new frontiers in supporting education for the underprivileged. Other volunteers like Ms
Jane Lee and Mr. Bill Chan, who have chalked up many hours of service, should be applauded for their compassionate spirit. There were also many nameless heroes who gallantly came forward when the HKO was found wanting in manpower. Their sacrifices in time and money are exemplary.

Conclusion

While 2010 has been a challenging year by all standards, the HKO has been able to stay financially healthy through increased sharing of ecumenical resources with local church partners.

The outlook of more climatic disasters augurs ominously for NGOs like Amity. The wealth gap is another threat that we could not ignore and our society may have to dig deep into our resources and resolve to face the situation. While the HKO can in no way reverse the situation, we remain hopeful that our work would make inroads in nurturing young people with a commitment to serve our brethren in China and contribute solving some of the global issues. That we see would be a sustainable approach in helping needy communities as well as narrowing the gap for the have-nots and thereby making the world a more harmonious one for our next generation.
The Nanjing Amity Printing Company

"Today, all of us in this room are acknowledging a miracle. The miracle is not only the completion of 80 million Bibles. The miracle is that through the Amity Foundation and the United Bible Societies (UBS), a world class printing company has been formed." In his congratulatory speech, the representative of UBS commented the achievement of the Amity Printing Company as we celebrated the completion of 80 million Bibles on the 9th of November 2010.

This is a miracle indeed. Even though, the Amity Printing Company still face the great difficulty in 2010 due to the aftermath of world economic crisis. However, with the support from all the hard-working staff at the company, the Amity Printing Company was able to overcome all the great challenges and reached the new milestone – 80 million Bibles.

Since the establishment of the company, the Amity Printing Company has produced more than 53 million Bibles for Chinese Christian, including 9 different Chinese minority Language Bibles and 2,062 sets of Braille Bibles (consisting of 32 volumes for a full Bible). The Amity Printing Company has also exported 27 million Bibles to over 70 countries around the world. The Amity Printing Company, with increased production capacity and support from the society, is aiming at the new target of completing production of 100 million Bibles in 2011.

The Amity Foundation, an independent Chinese voluntary organization, was created in 1985 on the initiative of Chinese Christians to promote education, social services, health, and rural development from China’s coastal provinces in the east to the minority areas of the west.
