Message of the General Secretary

The Amity Foundation celebrated its 30th anniversary with the blessings of innumerable friends at home and abroad. Having turned 30, a major milestone for an organization, Amity will continue to take solid strides in its philanthropic journey.

Amity in 2015

In 2015, despite encountering tough challenges over the last 30 years, Amity’s income reached new heights, providing much needed support for its continued growth and stability. The annual income exceeded RMB 150 million, a marked increase of 50% over the previous year. For the first time, domestic fund-raising garnered over RMB 100 million. More than RMB 58 million was raised through the internet, during the public campaign ‘Philanthropy by Everyone’.

Amity joined international relief and humanitarian efforts by sending relief teams to Nepal, further implementing its ‘Going Global’ strategy. To enhance Amity’s global outreach, the Amity Africa Office in Addis Ababa and the Amity International Office in Geneva were established.

Innovative efforts were made to practice its motto of ‘Faith and Love in Action’. Amity was designated the core location for the Religion and Philanthropy Training Center of Jiangsu Province, the first of its kind in China.

To advocate social progress and the development of philanthropy, the 30-year-old Amity held more than 10 forums and seminars with different themes during the year.

Amity explored a new model for eldercare by working with the Jiangsu Provincial People’s Hospital to launch a new nursing home complex.

Events during Amity’s 30th Anniversary Celebration included the Fifth Chinese Christian Art Exhibition, the Sixth International Forum for Social Development, and the ‘Hiking for Charity’ walkathon. All these were held to showcase Amity’s growth to the public and to express sincere gratitude to all its partners and friends in China and globally.

In 2015, ‘Internet Plus’ became a hot topic on the internet. ‘Entrepreneurship and Innovation by Everyone’ inspired the dreams of countless young people. Crowdfunding and a series of new concepts were listed among the hottest phrases. Topics such as innovation, coordination, openness, sharing, and going green were associated with all aspects of social life. Poverty relief, equality in education, serious illness insurance and other initiatives were no longer just relating to national development, but also about happiness for everyone. Powered by the Internet, the philanthropy sector became accessible, open and more efficient.

Looking Towards the Future

Following the footprints of its founders, the 30-year-old Amity made remarkable achievements with innovative efforts and steady approaches. As we look forward to the coming year, with its challenges and opportunities, Amity will never forget its vision and mission.

Focusing on community governance, Amity will actively participate in building harmonious rural and urban communities. Amity will upgrade and expand community services to serve community needs. To facilitate church-run social services, Amity will focus on religion and philanthropy, building a platform that will include research, training, exchanges and resource sharing. Amity will continue its social witness in accordance with the san ming principles of accountability (mingxing), professionalism (minghui) and virtue (mingdao). Embracing InternetPlus, Amity will continue to promote ‘Philanthropy by Everyone’ and pioneer a new model of diversified development. Through its active engagement in international cooperation and sharing, Amity’s ‘Going Global’ strategy will parallel the nation’s One Belt One Road initiative.

Today, after 30 years, Amity is once again at a new beginning. Following the footprints of faith, hope and love, Amity has embarked on a new journey.

Focusing on Jiangsu Christian Fund for Social Service, the Church and Social Service Program actively expanded its ministry in new fields. Sponsor a Pastor Project aims to help grassroots pastors by providing basic and necessary support to their ministry, life and fellowship. In 2015, around 150 pastors benefited from the program. The first Deborah Retreat was held to give grassroot female pastors a week to get refreshed and better prepared to serve the church and society. Volunteer Team Building training for grassroots church volunteers adopted new approaches. In addition to biblical thematic sharing, the training carried out spiritual games and outdoor activities. The training class provided a relaxing and lively communication platform and attracted younger Christians to share and participate, laying a foundation for more varied ministry for the church. In the aspect of disability ministry, with the support of Joni and Friends, 287 wheelchairs worth of more than RMB 250,000 were provided to the movement impaired in church communities in Jiangsu. Over 100 volunteers from the local churches participated the Retreat for families with the challenged members and offered respite care service to 20 families.

From June 24 to 30, 2015, invited by the Chinese Christian Organization of Cross-strait Exchanges, the 12-member Amity church social service delegation paid a visit to 23 churches and church-run social service organizations in Taiwan. They learned the roles that Taiwan churches played in the society, and bore glorious witness to Christ. The visit has deepened the exchange and interaction among cross-strait church social service organizations, strengthened inter-church connection, and carried on cross strait friendship and affection.
Love is Acceptance and Inclusion

For the first time, local churches in Xuzhou organized the Retreat for Families with members with disabilities under the sponsorship of Jiangsu Christian Fund for Social Service in 2015. Twenty families with children suffering disabilities participated in the retreat. Inspired by the Word of God, parents of children with disabilities enjoyed both physical and spiritual relaxation during the retreat. Through helping the children with disabilities, young volunteers from local churches recognized the significance of disability ministry.

Miss Zhang from the youth fellowship of a local church was cautious and nervous at the very beginning of the retreat. She did not know how to facilitate activities for the children. But at the second evening of the retreat, she excitedly said, “Today I feel so touched by these children. They are not so weak as I imagined. We need patience and care to feel their loveliness and excellence. Their merits are worth learning. If there will be such retreat next time, I hope to participate again.” These children longed to be accepted and needed. Keep contact with these children and their families is the best and equal way to know and understand them.

In 2015, the approach to sustainable development was followed to implement the rural community development and environmental protection program in 16 provinces, municipalities and ARs including Yunnan, Guangxi, Hunan, Guizhou, Sichuan, Qinghai, Ningxia, Inner Mongolia, Gansu, Beijing, Hubei, Jiangsu, Anhui, Henan, Hebei, and Guangdong. The program covered integrated development of rural communities, building self-help organizations in rural communities, environmental protection and climate change, as well as support to migrant workers. In addition to concern about the development of local farmers and the development of rural communities, the projects on integrated development of rural communities also supported off-farm migrant workers. The interaction between urban and rural communities had become a new task for the integrated development of rural communities.
Highlights of this year’s work include more attention paid to cooperation with specialized organizations. In May 2015, bidding for projects supporting migrant workers were launched. Project applications were received nationwide from 64 organizations in 15 provinces. Finally 20 organizations won the projects. Public bidding and wide cooperation for projects expanded the impact of projects and motivated specialized development of projects. Moreover, publicity and fund-raising for the rural community development and environmental protection program began water test in China, among which were exposure visits to drinking water projects for fundraising and advocacy, and new media promotion for photovoltaic power projects. To accommodate the needs of social development and lay a solid foundation for further project transformation, the project team held the workshop on online fundraising and rural products e-commerce, with participation of all project partners.

Amity project office in Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region received a letter of thanks from Guangdong Province. The sender of the letter was Wu Tongbing, a young man benefiting from Amity’s drinking water project implemented in his home village in Leye County, Guangxi. In the letter he wrote:

"Before the implementation of the project in our village, we suffered a lot from the lack of drinking water. Young villagers were confined at home from non-farming work opportunities due to their labor duty of fetching water for their households. In early 2015, a drinking water project supported by Amity Foundation and Bread for the World was implemented in our village. Clean tap water was available in every household in our village. As the elderly and children got access to clean drinking water at home, we young villagers went to work outside without worrying about trouble back at home any more. I got a job in Guangdong Province and have earned RMB 3000 yuan for the first month."

To express his gratitude for Amity, he composed a jingle on how the project provided the family with clean water and helped them increase income.

Colleagues of Amity project office felt encouraged by the letter. The drinking water project looks simple but plays a vital role in improving the life of village beneficiaries. The infrastructure construction has not only brought about convenience to their lives but also dispelled the worries of young workforce to go out for employment. The ways of getting rich have more possibilities.
On April 25, 2015 when Nepal was shocked by 8.1 magnitude earthquake, Amity responded instantly and dispatched staff members to the front line to deliver emergency relief work. This is the first time Amity Nanjing headquarters directly participated in-depth overseas disaster response, and also the first time Amity raised funds in China for overseas relief projects, a milestone in Amity’s internationalization strategy. In this international response, Amity sent over ten staff members and sponsored more than RMB 6 million, reaching 52,655 victims directly. On the basis of “Humanitarian Charter and Minimum Standards in Humanitarian Response”, Amity worked closely with our international partners through ACT Alliance network. In addition to ensuring the relief work quality, Amity staffers have built up precious experience in international response.

In the meantime, Jiangsu Christian Fund for Social Service appealed to the churches in Jiangsu to pray for disaster victims and the relief work. Local churches in Jiangsu held special prayer meetings and made donations in succession for Nepal disaster-hit people and emergency response. Jiangsu Christian Fund for Social Services received donations totaling RMB 629,340.23 yuan from local churches. The money was used to purchase relief materials and rebuild the church building in Nepal. This is also the first time for the churches in mainland China to go abroad and play a part in international disaster responses.
Amity Foundation sent the relief team to the front line instantly after the Nepal earthquake occurred. In Nepal, Amity relief team members, working with Nepalese partners and local volunteers, packed relief meals everyday for victims to facilitate food distribution. Hundreds even thousands of food packs were sent to the affected people each day.

On the early morning of May 2, 2015, 12 volunteers arrived at the warehouse, among whom were university students, enterprise employees, retired elders, family members of the staff of Nepalese partner organizations, and those who saw recruitment messages from social media and came to offer help.

Meal packing was not as simple as expected. Due to the high cost of ready-made cloth packs, the volunteers took on the manufacturing work of the cloth packs as well as packing and sealing. From 9 am to dark, they kept working without any stop until the completion of 800 meal packs.

An elder was sewing cloth packs on a sewing machine skillfully and conscientiously, ignoring his old age. The girl named Shristy Chhetri, 26, was sitting cross-legged and holding the cloth packs. The 27-year-old boy Ashish Jung Rayamajhi, kneeling on two knees, was passing the packs. Being earthquake victims themselves and having their own jobs, they determinedly volunteered to help other compatriots. By supporting Amity’s work, they helped their compatriots. This is where the charm of philanthropy lies. There is no definite dividing line between givers and receivers. We work hand-in-hand to rebuild a better homeland.

Through establishing a system for disease prevention and control, the project aims at improving health awareness and health behavior of the public to upgrade their motivation and ability of self-management and self-development in the community. It is committed to building a social environment of health, equality, progressed and well-aligned. In 2015, there were 26 projects put into effect in 23 cities and counties, within 15 provinces and autonomous regions, such as Yunnan, Guangxi, Guizhou, Hunan, Hubei, Gansu, Sichuan, Shandong, Jiangsu, Jiangxi, Henan, Beijing, Shanghai, Chongqing, Tianjin, and so on, which covered 36 different activities, including HIV care team, health promotion in community, medical staff and community volunteer training, association of development, study tour, Aids life cycle, show tour of movie and drama for charity, LGBT choir group performance and promotive education work in universities. The cumulative number of beneficiaries reached more than 270,000 people.

Public health project has popularized the rural medical plan by the use of new media and network as commonweal platform, so to further increase the influence of the project in domestic, which is not only conducive to improving the local medical condition and boosting the basic-level health care provider’s professional skills, but also facilitate the public awareness of the public health and the equalization of basic public health services work in progress. The development centre of the HIV/AIDS prevention and control project will be keeping up in the high-prevalence area, such as Yunnan, Guangxi, Hunan, etc., so as to carry out the project of the HIV comprehensive treatment based on the community. On the basis of summarizing the past experience of the projects, it is about to deliver key HIV/AIDS prevention mode more effectively, and to build up the living environment of infected people, furthermore, to assist the local community in carrying through an overall development approach.

The Free Clinic at the Doorstep

In the middle of August, 2015, at Pingbian County, Honghe Hani and Yi Autonomous Prefecture, Yunnan Province, there were a mother and a daughter perished successively due to hypertensive cerebral hemorrhage.

Hypertension is not an incurable disease, but, in the countryside, especially in the rural area of middle-west China, medical emergencies like the tragedy above often occur. The reason is obvious: The economic development and social public service have not been well coordinated with each other; some inherent institutional defects are remaining in the medical security system; the basic medical and health services (especially medical care in the countryside) are vulnerable; and the masses are lack of prevention and healthcare themselves, … all of which casts a shadow on the health of the rural residents. According to statistics, each year, the nationwide newly emerging strokes are over 1.5 million, among which there are more than 75% having varying degrees of disabilities. It creates substantial burden to individuals, families and the society and often restricts individuals’ activities for a lifetime, furthermore, it is one of the reasons that causes the loss of rural labour force and the poverty lives of farmers. In view of the above relevant information, Amity’s public health project – rural medical plan – that takes the management of high blood pressure for the breach, adding that a series of cardiovascular disease control has been carried out around the rural communities, along with village clinics-centred community health care system, including the basic prevention and treatment of hypertension, the construction of health care clinic in remote region, physical examination, and health education campaign, and so forth.

In December 2015, in the event of the above accident happened area, along with Amity’s public health project – rural medical plan, the doctors from Xinhua township hospital were joined up to see patients over there on a volunteer basis and also helped them to have a check-up, so as to set up residents’ health records for the local villagers. Though topography of the area was very complex with high and steep slopes, and even with no site for public examination and gratuitous treatment, the little group finally found a courtyard at one of the villagers’ home. No matter how cramped the place was, and how poorly equipped, the doctors had eventually brought the free clinic to the villagers’ doorstep. An aged woman from Gejijie village called Long Jinfeng whom was about 90 years-old and never participated in physical examination for her lifetime. When she learned that there were free clinic doctors in the village she came in the early morning to see them. Nature’s affinity with professional service the doctor reassured her in the end. Therefore, she happily said: “I never thought to have such a good chance. I’m still hale and hearty!”
Over the past year, the social welfare program had persisted in serving children from orphanages, youngsters with disabilities and teenagers from underprivileged families. It is in this spirit that the program always adheres to the service concept of "helping people develop holistically" and "helping people to help themselves", along with the participatory management, and the attitude of equality, respect and acceptance, providing with support, curing, health, teaching and socializing in a full range of service. In the duration of promoting whole person care, great attention must be paid to integrate various social resources through cooperating and interacting with other professional institutes in both China and abroad, introducing international advanced ideas of child care, special education and the work concerning people with disabilities. Meanwhile, to find the way to promote advocacy and effectiveness in protection for children’s rights and to improve the whole society's respect and accommodating more about the needs of them.

Specific projects mainly include family foster care of the abandoned babies, Amity grandmas, early childhood education and care for the hearing and visual impaired, special education for sign language, corrective operation for congenital heart disease infants, hospice care and protection for children's rights, and so on. Recent works include the projects involved in 17 provinces and autonomous regions in China, namely, Jiangsu, Jiangxi, Hunan, Hubei, Guizhou, Sichuan, Anhui, Ningxia, Shandong, Guangdong, Henan, Hebei, Fujian, Shaanxi, Shanxi, Jilin and Gansu, which covers about 3,500 direct beneficiaries and 8,000 indirect beneficiaries.
Shishi, You Are Not Alone

When Shishi was brought to Wuhan Children's Welfare Home, on that very day, she was diagnosed to be a “low birth weight newborn”. In order to make sure the emaciated child would be cared more professionally and mother-like, on 11 June 2015, the little girl was placed in foster care by Amity. After getting home, Shishi’s “mum” took good care of her and made her many meals but little food at each. A half month later, the amount of intake food at each time was increased from 30ml to 60ml, and meanwhile, the newborn jaundice was getting better and better. When she was four and a half months old, her mother found that her head stood a bit unstable and floppy, therefore, under the guidance of the teacher from the institution-based-rehabilitation of Amity Foundation, Shishi's mum gave her specific massage every morning, noon and evening for ten minutes. Due to the timely intervention, Shishi's symptoms were relieved. After five months, Shishi was able to identify the voice of the family. One day, her mother would have to visit relatives so that she entrusted Shishi to her daughter-in-law and put everything in order, such as milk to drink and toys to play. But, though all arranged, Shishi still looked a little dull and unhappy. Until late in the afternoon, mum came back, when Shishi heard the sound of mum’s she smiled happily so that mum could not help but laughed: “sweety, good to take care of you! To my surprise, you are able to recognize my sound!” Her mum also laid stress on the enlightened education for Shishi, for instance, every day, she talked to her daughter a lot, or sang a cute children’s song and read a favourite bedtime story to her before bed. Till now, Shishi is not only in the pink of health, but also a happy, smiling girl herself.

Through the series professional, practical training campaign, the family foster care project of Amity Foundation continuously improves the foster families’ skills and ideas in caring and loving, and to help these ever broken-winged angels to regain the warmth in their homes as much as possible, so as to benefit from a healthy and loving home and socially reintegrated in the further.
There were three girls standing in front of me whom were from the best high school of WuChuan County, Zunyi city, Guizhou Province. The data showed that they were all from a dysfunctional family with deceased father and remarried mother. I chose a new way of communication that I never tried before: sharing some experience with each other with eyes closed, such as the cognition of disrupted family, the feeling of underlying “language violence” around, how to cope with stress in life, and the vision of the future, etc.

“I think I’m despised by my classmates.”

“I’m tired. I’m so tired.”

“Grandma and grandpa are too old to take care of me and my sister and brother. I would’ve felt I had failed them if I did not test well.”

They talked disjointedly and then tears running down their faces one after another with their eyes still closed. Once they had finished their conversation, silence hung between us. Two minutes later, I gently said to them: “Thank you for your trust. To express your hidden thoughts and feelings with your two friends around here, this is very good. Now, if you like, all of you can slowly open your eyes.” When their eyes were opened their murmuring whimper burst into a loud, bellowing cry, finally, all that pent-up vexation and emotion were taken out like a flood pouring out. I held them tightly and said: “If you feel sad, then cry it out, no one will laugh at you.” In a few moments, when they had stopped crying and was calmer, I eventually saw a relief in their faces. I had talked a lot with them about life, learning, friend, and slowly, I felt them growing closer to me as the conversation continued, as if we were chatting with old friends……

“Poor but constantly strive to become stronger”, “suffered but still courageously moving forward”…… these are the first impressions of the many children of “e—action”. Also, there are many enthusiastic sponsors often encourage these children to be strong”. Although these people may have the best of intentions—to encourage and protect the kids—the result may in fact defeat the purpose. However, if one is not to help others to release negative emotion as the prerequisite, then such encouragement can likely be a kind of language violence and emotional kidnapping. Everyone, at some point, will suffer the loss of loved ones, much less all children? Given the children so-called positive self-encouragement that they will be likely to think in a way of “if I am not strong enough, it’s just not right”, as a result, it will not only add the negative emotions in their heart to digest alone, but also put burden on their own mind. Therefore, the principle of the “e—action” is to provide both economic and spiritual support through the establishment of long-term funding relationship so as to have the children grow healthily. So, to let the simple words untie the knot in children’s mind, and helping them to deal with the negative emotions properly, all of which will help them to discover their own potential to do better, and to hold their own selves to a higher standard.
The education and international exchange project has developed together with Amity Foundation for 30 years till this year.

Amity Foundation has continuously standardized professionalization in voluntary teaching and scholarship project following the past 30 years’ exploration, accumulation, inheritance and innovation, and has steadily brought the high-quality foreign language teachers and young volunteers to the poverty-stricken area, as well as to provide both material and emotional support to the middle school students in northern Jiangsu Province and southern Anhui Province.

In addition, the concept of Gap Year (refers to, in Europe and the United States, a year's break taken by a student between leaving high school and starting further education. The student usually will travel to some other places and choose to do some volunteer work in NGOs, in order to experience and understand a different social environment to his own, with the aim of widening his international perspective upon his return to study and a positive attitude towards life) is known to all, the intercultural communication project is becoming more and more popular for young people all over the world, most of whom are international volunteers. According to this requirement, the project makes full use of internet reasonably and carefully orchestrated an integrated platform of learning tour, volunteer work, optional practical training, livelihood, and social activity for the majority of young people. The project is committed to foster leaders among the young generation whom must take pleasure in seeking knowledge and have the courage to explore, while being happy to serve others, so that they can become high-quality talents of this new era with a global outlook and humanistic concern. In this year, the project of the Youth Cultural Exchange between China and South Korea officially launched. The first three volunteers from South Korea came to China for a three months-long service-learning, meanwhile, Chinese volunteers would go to South Korea in March 2016 for exchange. And, the “Dream-true Students” project attempted internet crowd-funding for the first time, and within three days, the fundraising amount reached nearly RMB200,000, which could provide a 3-years living and studying costs for the students in difficulty from northern Jiangsu Province. During the 30th anniversary celebration, there were a total of 17 international volunteers, of Gansu, Inner Mongolia and Nanjing, invited to attend the ceremony by Amity Foundation. Among them, there were 14 volunteers taking part in the celebration performance. Although time was pressing with great rehearsal intensity and high demands, the volunteers successfully completed the performance while presenting the internationality of Amity to all delegates, and therefore, enhanced the international volunteers’ understanding and sense of belonging toward Amity.
In October 2015, at the Forum on Youth Philanthropy, among a number of different spokesmen was a 19-year-old boy named Liu Haotian introducing himself in the style of talk show. He told people what he had experienced during the service-learning project of Amity-Norway, which caused the audience of college students repeatedly applause. And at the time when he travelled to Norway, Liu Haotian was only at the age of 18 whom was the youngest volunteer of the project over the years.

Before joining this project, the words of poverty, hunger, equal rights, war, etc. were so far away from Liu Haotian's carefree life. He frankly said that he didn’t even care about it before. But, when he met the volunteers from Africa, Latin America, Southeast Asia and some other places, he found that his new-found friends themselves had lived a life of poverty, hunger and even the threat of war. Liu Haotian said: “Such experience will allow me to see with my own eyes that there are still far too many people, in other parts of the world, whose the most basic needs for survival go unmet, which makes me feel sad. These people and I live in the same world, but, just because they were born in different places that the life would treat them differently, even lose the right to live.” As a result, Liu Haotian determines to equip himself with the knowledge he can acquire so as to make himself a responsible, capable citizen of the world. With the thought and purpose that he’s going to do all he can to help himself to reach the seemingly distant ideal.

Every year, there are nearly two hundred Chinese and foreign young people taking part in all kinds of cross-cultural service-learning activities, Liu Haotian is one of them. Under a new and unfamiliar culture environment to serve others is a way of getting to know each other, and it is even more so to get to know oneself truly. By doing so, there are more and more young people from all over the world gaining more life experiences and sharpening their inborn skills so as to bear more social responsibilities.

As local governments were actively promoting social organizations' participation in community governance, Amity NGO Development Center strove to improve its service capacity and brand impacts by making the most of its functions in nurturing and supporting, platform construction, resource integration, research and advocacy, through innovation, systematic training, interaction and resource support. The Center expanded and deepened its participation in community governance, and strengthened its functions in policy advocacy and resource cooperation.

In 2015, the center managed 5 NGO development bases, consisting of three regional and 2 sub-district level bases. To achieve the goals of actively participating and promoting community governance, the center worked to deliver service at city, district, sub-district and community levels through capacity building, resource support, service demonstration and policy advocacy. It has expanded community service, explored social renovation, and formed a multi-layered and pluralistic service system. In 2015, Amity NGO Development Center implemented 41 service projects of various kinds, supported the development of 45 NGOs in elderly care, juvenile service, community governance, offered 35 sessions of training and over 200 times of supervision, managed RMB 13.52 million of government-entrusted venture philanthropy fund, and monitored 280 philanthropic projects. The exploration and development of the Center in 2015 has brought about fruitful effects in work scopes and influence, including establishment of a four-level NGO development system, breakthrough in community-based service, deepened participation in community governance, and strengthening of the Center’s sustainable development capacity.
An Eternal Ideal, An Ever-lighted Library

In the era when paper reading is increasingly neglected, Chen Ye, an aspiring post-1980, planned to open a library which sounded incredible to people around him. With his library project proposal, he resolutely joined Social Enterprise Development Program of Amity NGO Development Center. Even though he did not fully understand social enterprise, this was what he wanted. His dream was to fulfill his social responsibility and achieve sustainable development.

With the help and instructions from Amity team, Chen Ye’s Library Project made considerable progress. This project is aimed to be a leader in community culture and shared space for public participation. The project’s commercial mode, social enterprise value and concrete promotion strategy were reviewed. As the supporter, Amity provided him various opportunities in exchange and communication, expert consultation and etc.

The start-up of an undertaking needs actions. In April 2015, Chen Ye rented a house in Gulou District and named it Second-floor South Library. “We aim to explore the cultural value of architectures built during the period of the Republic of China, and to let reading become people’s daily habit,” said Chen Ye. As a starter, Second-floor South Library Project was considered promising due to its steadfast mission, clear development guidelines, and professional operation. Very soon, “An External Ideal, an External Library” attracted media coverage and opportunities for growth poured in. To ensure the quality of the library and sustainability of organizational development, Chen Ye keeps learning. He thinks the startup of an undertaking needs good experience and suggestions in line with the development at different stages. Amity NGO development work has given him great confidence and encouragement.

Besides, the home helped residents to see doctors outside the nursing home and conducted rehabilitative training among elders with disability and dementia, which benefited a total of 1,002 elders. With the purpose of improving the efficiency of rehabilitative service, the Amity International Philanthropy Valley Home for the Elderly upgraded the rehabilitative service mode and newly formed rehabilitative training groups for elders with disability and dementia to improve the efficiency of individual training and service. Meanwhile the nursing home became more vibrant with the participation of volunteers. With their help, 347 activities were held there including singing club, brain gym and blood pressure monitoring.

Under the guidance and assessment by Qixia District virtual nursing home, 78 home-based care centers have been granted AA level status by the district government in 2015 with nursing service networks at three levels of district, sub-district and community being increasingly stable and assessment team being professional, standardized and systematic. Based in Qixia District and open to the rest of Nanjing, the online crowdfunding project Papa & Mama's Canteen has received a donation of 3 million Yuan in 2015 and established 56 lunch service sites across Nanjing providing over 100,000 person-time lunches and supporting social service for more than 1000 vulnerable elders such as older elders living alone and elders with disability or dementia.
An Unexpected Slap

Suffering from dementia, Grandma Chang (disguised name) often lost control of her temper and behavior and thus was sent by her family to the Amity International Philanthropy Valley Home for the Elderly to receive professional care. Since she was admitted to the Amity International Philanthropy Valley Home for the Elderly, Grandma Chang would smash almost everything in her room including mirrors, closets and toilet facilities whenever she lost control of her temper. To prevent Grandma Chang from hurting herself when she failed to control herself, our International Philanthropy Valley Home for the Elderly has practiced protective restraint for her and arranged a special care taker to look after her.

On the Chinese New Year's eve of 2016, Aunt Wang Rongmei, the nursing attendant of Grandma Chang, went to look after Grandma Chang as usual and found she looked very well and was in a good mood. Considering it was a festival, Aunt Wang decided to walk Grandma Chang outside. In the beginning, everything went on well with Grandma Chang, however, when lunchtime was approaching and Aunt Wang started to prepare for the meal, Grandma Chang appeared unhappy and uneasy with her brows frowned. Having noticed that, Aunt Wang immediately turned to Aunt Liu, another nursing attendant nearby and was thinking of sending Grandma Chang back to her room first and having lunch later in case she should lose control. Unluckily, Grandma Chang became out of control suddenly and tore off the apron from her body and kicked off her shoes desperately before entering her room. Seeing this scene, Aunt Liu supported and clasped Grandma Chang to prevent her from falling down from the wheelchair while Aunt Wang was attempting to pick up Grandma Chang's shoes and put them on for her. Just at this moment, an unexpected slap from Grandma Chang hit Aunt Wang in the face. Never thinking of such a behavior from Grandma Chang, Aunt Wang fell into a shock with a complete and obvious handprint on her red cheek, and almost burst into tears. Only after a few seconds, Aunt Wang came out of the shock, tried to put on the shoes for Grandma Chang again and succeeded in taking Grandma Chang back to her room with the help of another two staff.

Qiu Zhonghui, General Secretary of Amity who visited the Amity Home for the Elderly and expresses his New Year's greetings to staffers on duty Chinese New Year's eve, inquired after Aunt Wang's injury and made a sincere apology to her on behalf of Grandma Chang when he heard about the incident. He also expressed his great gratitude for all staff for their dedication to looking after those elders.

Aunt Wang said, “I was really moved and didn’t feel aggrieved any more when the General Secretary apologized to me on behalf of Grandma Chang. In fact, it was not Grandma Chang’s fault and she even didn’t notice what she had done. Therefore I won’t blame her. Everyone will get older and everyone has parents. I’m willing to think in those elders’ shoes and regard them as my parents.”

SERVICE FOR the Challenged

Fenghuang Sunshine Courtyard is a project of community integrated service carried out by Fenghuang sub-district, Gulou district, Nanjing city. As an introduction of a social organization, Amity Child Development Centre takes over the service for early rehabilitation for special children, free consultation and parenting knowledge lecture, which covered the whole city. And a number of exchange programs and public caring activities has developed on the above basis that diligently practiced Fenghuang sub-district’s “Beautiful Fenghuang, Happy Home” concept of serving the people’s livelihood.

In 2015, Amity Child Development Centre had freely received 126 families, about 500 people, to seek professional advice. The total service personnel in the daytime were about 72 people, and carried out the parenting knowledge lecture for 5 times. The Centre had been examined through the Nanjing Federation of Handicapped People and became one of the rehabilitation facilities fixed by the organization, along with continuously undertaking the rehabilitation project of the Gulou District Federation of Handicapped People, namely, children of 7 to 14 years old with autism. More encouragingly, after the summer holiday of 2015, there were 12 special children successfully admitted to an ordinary kindergarten, and another student then went to a special education school.

The year-round service work was arranged around the following 5 central tasks: class management, theme-focused education, sensory integration assessment, learning and sharing, game skills, and education toys tips. The professional service was approved by the parents and gained good reputation in the industry. Amity Home of Blessings had 30 students to look after yearly; and organized large-scale activities about 70 times, including the first Women’s Mini Marathon structured by Jiangsu Traffic Network; and welcomed the Archbishop of Canterbury from the UK; Amity Foundation 30th Anniversary; the particular get-together “Warm A Year” for Christmas sponsored by Nanjing Library, etc. This year, the vocational rehabilitation and training is still the priority for all in the charity kindergarten, which will focus on the enterprise and public institution closely related to the occupational rehabilitation. For instance, the Paris Baguette Bakery, Pizza Hut, and Foranet Laundry became the new members for specific and post adaptability training. And, so far, there are 2 trainees recommended for the restroom and kitchen cleaning job in Pizza Hut as regular employee. Meanwhile, successively, another 4 trainees have taken part in a seasonal work in Foranet, and the guardianship of them was from full-time to none. Such social practice can effectively build up the students’ basic vocational skills and professional quality in the end.

In 2015, the annual operational income of Amity Bakery was about RMB3.87 million, and there were 5 students stepped into auxiliary employment and, in succession, admitted 14 students from Amity Charity Kindergarten to carry out occupational training. The production centre at Dajianyin Alley was brought into operation in 2015 and successfully obtained the National Industrial Production License (QS in short), and all work flow has been strict with national regulation. For the whole year, 20 times charity sale were held with 620 people joining in. it mainly includes: in January, with RMB 197,448.63 raised from the network crowd-funding through Taobao website, due to a total of 2,167 netizens support; in April, with RMB 125,105.00 raised from the network crowd-funding through QQ website, due to a total of 1,325 netizens support; in June, initiated the activity “To Raise Money for Charity with Nicholas Tse”; in July, Amity Bakery attended “The 2nd National Talent Show of People with Disabilities” as the member of Jiangsu delegation, and delivered an work report to the State Councillor Wang Yong and Zhang Haidi—the chairman of China Federation of Handicapped People.

One day, the wind came in gusts with fluffy snow. As they were finishing work, Zhou Jian—a trainee of Amity Bakery—earnestly said to the fellow students Huihui and Shu Chunyang: “Today the weather is bad, as your elder brother, I have a word with both of you and I hope you won’t feel annoyed. First of all, it is cold outside, so be sure to wear your clothes properly, as same as I did. Besides, have you both got umbrella with you?” Huihui answered in a low voice: “I have.” Shu Chunyang just nodded. Then Zhou Jian went on to say: “Although it is not raining you will have to shelter beneath your umbrella, otherwise, you will get all wet and might catch a cold later. I’ll walk you to the bus station with the teacher and seeing you both off at the station.” While walking down the street Shu Chunyang quietly took Zhou Jian’s hand with a reassuring smile. The teacher was holding Huihui’s hand and followed them. This was an ordinary day in the bakery. All at once, it seemed that it was less cold because love was like sunshine.

Lately, Zhou Jian had followed the master in making bread, and He Cheng just stared at them all the way around. Finally, one day, He Cheng could not help walking toward the teacher, and said: “teacher, I want to learn to make bread.” Before the teacher answered, Zhou Jian hurriedly said: “teacher, I will teach him!” Therefore, the teacher arranged a table and flour, said to Zhou Jian: “Now, He Cheng is over to you.” Zhou Jian said, patting his chest: “Don’t worry, I will teach him till he is able to make bread.” He Cheng watched Zhou Jian gratefully.

Shu Chunyang always had trouble getting the bow-tie down properly. One day, the teacher would come to check everyone’s dressing. After tying up her own bow-tie, seeing Shu Chunyang standing aside with an embarrassed air, Huang Wenhui then ran to him and said: “Yangyang, let me help you.” On tiptoes Huihui held out her hand and tried, but, she wasn’t tall enough to reach the bow-tie, consequently, she trotted off to get a stool and placed it in front of Yangyang, said: “Take this seat. I’ll help you with your tie.” After a while, Huihui was done with the tie, and took Yangyang to the mirror, said: “Look, you’re handsome, aren’t you?” Shu Chunyang grinned all over his face.
On the evening of May 15th, 2015, the Amity Foundation HK Office (AFHK) held the “Love Never Ends - 30th Anniversary soiree” in Hong Kong. More than 250 people attended the ceremony including representatives of the Hong Kong government, leaders of the HK Christian Church, donors, representatives of the Amity Foundation headquarters and Amity HK, and youth volunteers. Mr. Qiu Zhonghui, Vice Board Chair and General Secretary of the Amity Foundation expressed in a speech his gratitude to the unconditional and altruistic support of the Hong Kong people for Amity’s work during the past decades. He called upon the people of Hong Kong to continue to support Amity, increase communication, cooperation and further enhance the social development of China. Director of Amity HK, Mr. Anthony Tong, thanked in his address Hong Kong people for their steadfast support and companionship in Amity’s 30-year journey and hoped Amity would continue to leave “footprints of love”, which people will follow.

Another breakthrough for AFHK this year was the beginning of more dialogue among relief agencies in Hong Kong. This is enabling agencies with more experience to share best practices and common challenges in relief management. Notably, a joint communicate was issued in the name of six NGOs including the AFHK to support displaced people in Syria and their safety.

The basic tenet of the Living Water project is to provide water-deprived villages with sustainable supplies of clean potable water. In 2015, more than HK$300,000 was raised to build water facilities for students and teachers in Banlao Xiang Primary School in Yunnan Province, and the villagers in Guangxi Province.

The Walk for Living Water has become an indispensable component of the Living Water Project. About 600 people participated in the Walk this year, which was officiated by Mr. Stephen Lam Sai Lung, OBE, GBM, GBS, JP, the Director of Water Supplies Department Mr. Enoch Lam Tin Sing, JP, and Mr. Jaxon Wang Yu Tai, the Principal of SKH Tsang Shiu Tim Secondary School. Against the backdrop of carnival activities like balloon twisting, face-painting and beads art, walkers took turns in carrying the sets of water buckets with a pole round the embankment of the Shing Mun River. The Strong Men Contest attracted 9 courageous teams and the activity atmosphere was hilarious.

Four local schools worked with AFHK in organizing Mini-walks in their own compounds to raise money to support our work on water. Besides broadening their knowledge about the critical situation in remote villages and recognizing their responsibilities in the global water crisis, students tried out their creativity in designing fun-filled activities and learn from the experience.

With a view to making better use of the Disaster Relief Fund, the Chief Secretary of Administration of the HKSAR Government invited all agencies having worked with the DRF for an informal consultative session. As a result of the candid exchange, the project scope eligible for funding support has been extended and application of relief resources made more flexible. Moreover, a fast-track arrangement has been negotiated to enable agencies to respond to the urgent needs of disaster victims in future.
University for Girls Project

In 2015, 18 girl students under sponsorship completed their university education and we welcomed 44 into the first year of their studies, including students from Guizhou University of Finance and Economics, which was partnering us for the first time. As a result, a total of 156 students are currently under sponsorship of the Project in Guizhou University, Guizhou Education University, Guiyang Medical University and Guizhou University of Finance and Economics. The growth of more than 21% in sponsorship was due mainly to the hardwork of the Working Group led by Mrs Yu Chan Siu Hing, whose personal sponsorship and strategic directives have been driving improvement in the last 5 years.

Another volunteer Ms Vivian Sun was the architect of the training framework for the Personal Development seminars, a core element of our support to these girls from impoverished backgrounds. She personally took charge of these seminars in March 2015 to validate the contents and delivery while assisted by experts and volunteers from different professional fields.

In recognition of the common weakness in oral English of these girls, a remote learning self-study programme has been devised using the WeChat platform, with 35 students having joined last year. One of the girls who completed in the programme last year gained sufficient proficiency in oral English that she was selected to be an intern at the Sea School in Orlando, USA, an eye-opening that further empowered her for great things in life.

School Rebuilding Project

In 2015, we supported the rebuilding of two schools, including the academic building, basketball court, student canteen and lavatories of Daxin Primary School in Yunnan, and the academic building, basketball court and lavatories of Dengshai Primary School in Guizhou.

Action e 10000 - Rural Orphan Fostering Project

In 2015, 128 donors from Hong Kong, the Mainland and overseas supported 225 orphans in China via AFHK. Among those supported, 9 were in universities and 216 were in primary and secondary education. The HK$529,880 raised provided basic needs for these children and young adults, such as tuition fees, improved nutrition, medical care, clothing, and etc.

Psychological needs and development continued to be a focal target in this project. To this end, a summer camp was organized in Tongzi, Guizhou in 2015. 22 young volunteers from Hong Kong, together with 10 Henan grown-ups formerly in our orphans project, joined Amity’s Summer Camp for Orphans. They served nearly 40 orphaned children in Jingxi, Guangxi. With different group activities aimed at strengthen children’s confidence, character, personal goal-setting, social support network. We were pleased find from simple exit questionnaires that there had been recognizable improvement in these children’s self-esteem and other targeted personal traits.

In order to cooperate with and to support the overall development strategy of the “Belt and Road” (B&R), following the official inauguration of Amity Office in Africa on 1st July in Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, Amity then announced the opening of Amity International Office in Geneva in the ceremony. Since July 2014, Amity was officially approved the status of special consultative status by the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) of the United Nations, Amity has always expected to carry out the interaction with more international NGOs in the world scene so that the voice of the Chinese social organization can spread extensively. At the same time, the establishment of these offices goes a step further to fulfill the goal and visions of Amity, as well as the sincere determination and assuming responsibility for bearing the international humanitarian obligations.

Amity has long been concerned about the aging problem. It is committed to provide professional service of physical and mental health to the elderly, along with the constantly searching after the new service mode for the aged people. After Amity Foundation and Jiangsu Provincial People’s Hospital signed an agreement to jointly establish Amity Philanthropic Valley Nursing Home, a pioneering management model that ensures comprehensive health care. Amity Foundation again signed a strategic cooperation agreement for the development of elderly services with Hong Kong Sheng Kung Hui, so as to take in even more professional technical support for the Amity Philanthropic Valley Nursing Home, and to further promote the depth and breadth of practice work in aging service.

In early spring of 1985, the leading pioneers of the older generation—Bishop K. H. Ting and Dr. Han Wenzao launched the Amity Foundation in Nanjing due to their remarkable foresight and vision. For 30 years, Amity has carried forward friendly cooperation in different forms with 300 institutions of more than 20 countries and regions, and has mobilized resources of the civic society at home and abroad in a large scale to support Amity, and also much work has been done in the field of urban and rural communities development, philanthropy promotion and industry support, international cooperation, etc. The funding reached approximately RMB 20 billion for more than 200 cities, counties and districts in 31 provinces, municipalities and autonomous regions in China that directly benefit a population of nearly 10 million poor people. Meanwhile, Amity has found an effective way to share international philanthropic resources for NGOs of China, and has built a new platform for the restarting public welfare of China after the reform and opening-up, so to create a special zone of commonweal in China. In the last decade, Amity people have the courage to bring forth new ideas thus the internet charity, social enterprise and industrial complex came into being, and activate a new round international strategy, furthermore, Amity will continue to play an important innovative role in the development of China’s philanthropy innovation and internationalization.
Philanthropy has the direct bearing on the national economy and people's livelihood and public interests, in which it either concerns to the protection of the rights and interests among a certain population to the large extent, or down to the medical assistance of a single person. And behind these achieved goals, there are all stakeholders from each side of our society, such as the government, enterprises, public benefit organizations and individuals.

The social problems involved in such charitable cause are often shown in a decentralized and localized fashion, despite the work the philanthropy organization engaged can solve a range of suchlike issues. Especially when it relates to a group of people or some common problems in a certain area, where the problems have been paid no attention from the government and society, therefore, in similar social issues, the public welfare organization's first try is to better play a necessary and favourable role which is an important social function of the public welfare organizations.

Amity Foundation has greatly focused on the research and promotion work. As early as in 1994, the international symposium on "Christian Culture and Modernization" was jointly launched by both Amity and the Institute of World Religions of Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, so as to help people achieve better knowledge and understanding on the development and contribution of the modern Christian culture. In recent years, Amity has hosted industrial and international seminars repeatedly for promoting social care and support, especially in child-welfare, caring for the elderly, education for autism, employment for differently-abled people, and religious public welfare, such as, during 2015, the seminars were held, including: "Philanthropy Development Forum in the New Normal", "The First Cross-strait Forum on the Religious Public Benefit", "The 6th International Forum on Community Development" and "Open Forum: Charity Law (draft)" and other activities, as well as to hold “The Second Phase of the Provincial Religious Charity Training Course” which entrusted by the United Front Work Department and the Religious Affairs Bureau of Jiangsu Province, that had attracted widespread attention in the community and gained great social influence.
